By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

"But these are foolish things to all the wise, And I love wisdom more than she loves me; My tendency is to philosophize On most things from a tyrant to a tree."

The prediction that the South will vote for Al if nominated simply proves the truth of the old adage that people who live in Fifteenth-amendment houses shouldn't throw Eighteenth-amendment stones.

Let us hope that Boss Olwyn's prediction that President Smith would be a dry won't cost Al the New York vote.

Mr. Vane is informed that next month 1,000 men will be thrown out of work in Philadelphia, and along early in December there'll be one more looking for a job.

John Paul Jones had just been called down by the Secretary of the Navy. "Sir," he replied, "I have just begun to write!"

There was a brave salt named Magruder, Whose only grave fault: he was ruder.

Than Decatur or Dewey. Suppose things do go bloozy?—It's the old U. S. Navy he's true to!

The Government's decision not to refuse admission to members of the Fascisti will save Italy the trouble of deporting Shriners and Odd Fellows. With the Legion enjoying one of those historic Roman holidays, this would be a fine time to twist Mussolini's nose.

"A diller a dollar, a ten o'clock scholar, What makes you come so soon? You used to come at ten o'clock, But now you come at noon."

Mayor Walker astounded New York by getting down to work at 10 a. m. However, it is not believed that his condition is acute.

The novel experience of having a suspect get a lawyer before the third-degree experts get him appears to have completely paralyzed the New Jersey police.

We see by the papers that Mr. Lowden's campaign is going to open next month. Front porch, or Pullman car?

The Mississippi flood area appeals to the bankers to liquidate the floating debt.

Belgium will salute the new heir with 21 guns if a princess, and 121 if a prince, which doesn't come under the head either of chivalry or coolidgeconomy.

If the stork should bring twins King Albert's navy probably would have to ask for a deficiency appropriation.

What Mr. T. O. Marvin can't understand is why France isn't willing to let the Tariff Commission handle this invoice.

Uncle Sam with his merchant marine is in much the situation of the farmer who wanted somebody to help him let go of a bear.

Evangeline Booth predicts that in another generation all the liquor in America will have disappeared. It seems reasonable, at the rate it's being lapped up.

With 8,000 marching in the parade of the Tall Cedars, it oughtn't to be so hard to locate a likely piece of presidential timber.

However, Miss Booth neglected to inform her audience of our deplorable prison statistics. They all do.

The disappearance of the salmon from Pacific waters has become almost as much of a mystery as the disappearance of the old-fashioned Jeffersonian Democrat.

There being just two issues in this country today—a great governor of a great State is turned down because he is a Catholic? and is personal liberty to remain in chains?—Josephus Daniels, with that sagacity which has always characterized him, reports that neither one exists.

The first thing we know the law against lotteries will keep the Democrats from nominating any ticket at all next year.

"You can not find any prosperity in the farming communities of the country."—Josephus Daniels. "The highest prices for cattle since the World War were paid on the Kansas City market today when 41 head of steers owned by W. T. Belcher, of Carrollton, Mo., brought $15.75 a hundred pounds."—A.P. dispatch from Kansas City. You pay your money and you take your choice.

Josephus admits that "the South likes Smith." We'll say! Oh, you old wet-drinking, dry-voting Dixie! What a place for a vacation!

EQUALITY OF BRAIN IN SEXES NOW HELD TO BE ESTABLISHED

Need Be No Inferiority to Man of an Equal Rank, Says Expert.

MRS. H. H. GARDENER'S STRUCTURE STUDIED

Gray Matter Only Equalled, Not Exceeded, by Best in Cornell Group.

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Abundant evidence that the brain of a woman need not be inferior to that of a man of equal rank has been discovered by Dr. J. W. Papez, of Cornell University, he announced today, as the result of a thorough study of the brain of Helen H. Gardener, noted author, lecturer and feminist.

Mrs. Gardener, who died in 1925, was buried in Cornell University. Research work on it was completed recently by Dr. Papez, curator of the Wilder brain collection and the results of his study will be published soon by the Smithsonian Institution. "In the structure of her own brain Mrs. Gardener has presented abundant evidence that the brain of a woman need not be inferior to that of a man of equal rank," he asserts, "in its entire organization it reveals a wealth of cortical substance or gray matter that is only equalled, but not exceeded by the best brains in the Cornell collection, which includes those of a number of doctors, professors, lawyers and naturalists."

Of High Descent. As a daughter of the Rev. A. G. Chenoweth and Katherine A. (Peele) Chenoweth, Mrs. Gardener was a descendant of both Sir Oliver Cromwell, of Hinchinbrook, and of Lord Baltimore. Her higher education was obtained at Cincinnati High School, Ohio State Normal School, and Columbia University. She married at the age of 22, and with her husband lived in New York City until 1900. There she wrote magazine articles, stories and books under the pen name of Helen Hamilton Gardener.

About 1908 she took up the struggle for equal suffrage and was closely associated with Susan B. Anthony, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

Two years after the death of her first husband she was married (1902) to Col. Seiden Allen Day, of the U. S. Army. CONTINUED ON PAGE 11, COLUMN 2.

Thea Rasche Crashes In Plane; Is Unhurt

Boston, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Thea Rasche, German aviator, crashed to the earth in her Flamingo biplane in attempting to make a landing at the Dennison airport at Quincy late today. Miss Rasche was reported uninjured, but the plane was damaged.

The accident occurred when Miss Rasche attempted to land her plane on swampy ground near the airport after the motor had gone dead while she was flying 2,000 feet above the field. In order to avoid hitting spectators on the landing field she headed over the hangars and brought the machine down on the low ground. The landing wheels stuck in the soft earth and the plane tipped up on its nose.

GIANTS CLING TO FAINT CHANCE AS END NEARS

Pirates, Idle, Must Win 2 of 3 Games to Clinch Pennant; Cards Also Rest.

New York, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Rain and an open date caused a pause in the National League pennant scramble today. The league-leading Pirates had a recess while the second-place Cardinals were rained out at Cincinnati, leaving a margin of two games separating the two front contenders. The Giants defeated the Phillies to gain half a contest. The standing:

	W.	L.	Ave. play.
Pittsburgh	93	38	616
St. Louis	91	40	603
New York	90	41	596

The Giants can tie for first place in the event the Pirates lose all three games left to play and the Cards take only two of three. The New Yorkers would have to sweep their three contests. To clinch the bunting Pittsburgh has come out in front in two contests providing the Cards capture all three. The standing then would be:

	W.	L.	Ave.
Pittsburgh	95	39	.617
St. Louis	94	40	.610

Man Dies at Rites For His Predecessor

Canberra, Australia, Sept. 28 (A. P.). J. Macgregor, recently appointed clerk of the house of representatives following upon the death of Clerk Walter Gale, collapsed today while ministers of the government were speaking in the house regrettably of the death of Gale. Macgregor died soon after being taken unconscious, from the house.

RICKARD AND HIS BOXERS FACE TRIAL OVER FILMS

Warrants Issued in California for Promoter and Eight Theater Men.

TRANSPORTATION DENIED

San Francisco, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—A San Francisco theater manager and seven of his employees were arrested here today on Federal warrants charging them with violating the interstate commerce act by showing the Tunney-Dempsey Chicago fight films. Tex Rickard, fight promoter, also was named in the action and a telegraphic warrant for his arrest sent to New York.

The arrests were made under a law prohibiting transportation of fight films from one State to another. Assistant District Attorney Eugene Bennett said that the Government later may arrest Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey and their managers and bring them here for trial.

Those arrested here were W. C. Culien, manager of the Capitol Theater, where the film was shown; Sol Pincus, press agent; James Haswell, ticket taker; Mrs. Mary Rose, cashier; Bety Baker and Joe Wells, ushers; Myer Goodman, electrician, and Thomas Merritt, picture operator.

The arrests came just as the film ran into the second round of the fight. More than 300 persons were in the theater at the time. The picture was stopped and money refunded to the spectators.

Cullen denied violating the law. He declared the interstate commerce act covered only transportation of films, and not exhibition of them. He said he understood that the pictures were reproduced from the originals in Los Angeles, and that he got the films from a Los Angeles man by the name of H. Burk.

Rivera Is to Meet Chamberlain on Yacht

(Special Cable Dispatch.) Madrid, Sept. 28.—Dictator Primo de Rivera slipped quietly out of town tonight for Barcelona, where tomorrow he will have an important conference with Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, on the latter's yacht.

The dictator believes he already has England swung to his side on the Tangier question, but is particularly anxious to smooth out the minor points of England's support with the foreign secretary. Gen. de Rivera's move is supposed to be strictly secret, the censors forbidding the Madrid papers even to mention the trip.

Hughes Gaining in Favor Over Hoover in Colorado

Dry Democratic Voters Likely to Knife Smith for Former Justice If Both Make Race—Governor Conceded Six Delegates.

By PHILIP KINSLEY.

Special to The Washington Post. Denver, Colo., Sept. 28.—Seed of the Charles E. Hughes presidential boom, tossed out upon the political winds from New York and Pennsylvania, seems to have found favorable soil as far West as Colorado. This is the first of the coast or mountain States in which this correspondent has noted such a drift. With the exception of Oregon, perhaps, his name meets with indifference in the West, where he campaigned and lost in 1916.

Since the decision of President Coolidge, to take himself out of the race, Herbert Hoover has had the lead in Colorado, according to Republican politicians who are keeping a close watch on public sentiment. Even today such an able leader as George H. Shaw, former Republican State chairman, is ready to guarantee that the majority of the State delegations could easily be gained for the Secretary of Com-

WET AND DRY PEACE URGED BY DANIELS ON 1928 DEMOCRATS

Wants Dollar Diplomacy, Not Prohibition, Made National Issue.

SOUTH LIKES SMITH, CAROLINIAN ADMITS

Calls on Wilbur and Says He Sees No Good in Reduced Naval Armaments.

Admitting that Al Smith is liked down South "as governor of New York," but declining to discuss his candidacy for the Presidency, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy under Woodrow Wilson, yesterday joined those evading the prohibition issue for 1928.

It would be terribly unfortunate, Daniels thinks, for either the wets or the drys to be in the saddle when the Madison Square Garden meeting of the Democracy is reconvened to nominate its candidate for the Presidency next June.

"The Democratic Party can not win if a faction that wants a glass of beer or a faction that doesn't want a glass of beer gets in control of the convention," Mr. Daniels said. "This talk of alcoholic content must stop."

He added that religious issues have no place in political campaigns, but declined to be drawn into a discussion as to whether Al Smith's wetness or his church affiliation would injure his chances either for the nomination or election.

Statement Makes Stir. Coming so quickly on the heels of the protest of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, one of the outstanding wets of Congress for these many years, and one of the three leading wet candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination, this statement by Daniels stirred up some wonder here as to whether the Democrats would be able to have a convention which would studiously avoid all disputed questions.

Since the announcement by William Gibbs McAdoo that he was not a candidate for the nomination, Daniels has been regarded by a great many dry Democrats as their champion, and there have been some efforts by his friends to get delegates for him in addition to those of North Carolina, which, it is assumed, he will have.

Daniels painted a vivid picture of the prohibition lion and lamb lying down together, with all religious bitterness and intolerance as completely out of sight as though it had ceased with the Dark Ages.

This hope of avoiding a battle over prohibition at the Democratic convention struck his hearers as the more surprising because he had just come from a conference with his old friend McAdoo, whose recent statement, while taking himself out of the race, prominently mentioned prohibition.

Sought by Poses, Man Is Found Slain

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The bullet-riddled body of Thomas Williams, negro, alleged to have attacked a 50-year-old white woman near Bartlettville, this county, yesterday morning, was found today in Pleasant Union Church yard 2 miles from the scene of the crime.

All day yesterday and far into the night hands of men searched for Williams, but none reported he had been found and there was no clue to the persons who shot him. A coroner's jury returned a verdict that the negro died "from gunshot wounds inflicted by unknown parties." Beside the body lay a package hurriedly bundled together, containing clothing and personal effects that Williams had snatched up before he fled from Bartlettville.

35 CATHOLICS KILLED BY TROOPS IN MEXICO

Two Clashes Are Reported by Government; One Priest Is Executed.

40 BANDITS ARE SLAIN

Mexico City, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Thirty-four rebellious "Catholic fanatics" were killed and a Catholic priest, Father Sadano, was captured and summarily court-martialed and executed after two brisk combats with federal troops in the state of Jalisco, says a bulletin issued by the presidential bureau tonight.

One corporal and two soldiers were killed and one officer and nine soldiers wounded.

The report of the affrays was received from Military Commandant Perceira.

The first fight took place at Los Mezquites, where 38 rebels, headed by Sadano and another chieftain named Placencia, were entrenched. This fight lasted four hours, and fourteen rebels were killed and two captured and executed. The others fled, Sadano being taken by the troops and later shot.

The second engagement lasted three hours, after 250 rebels, commanded by Alberto Parajá, Francisco Losa, Florencio Zaragoza and Jesus Nunez, attacked the federal troops under Col. Ortiz Sevilla at Portuquillo. The rebels were dispersed and fled to the mountains, abandoning eighteen dead and many wounded.

Six Counts Are Hurt In a Speeding Auto

Budapest, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Six Hungarian counts, including Count Edward and Paul Sechenyi, nephews of the Hungarian Minister to Washington, were seriously injured today when their automobile, which was traveling at the rate of 65 miles an hour, crashed into a bridge on the Miskolc road.

This is the second serious mishap in the Sechenyi family within two months. Ambassador Sechenyi having lost his eye as the result of an automobile accident when a car in which he was riding overturned near Budapest last month.

NORTHERNERS RETURN CONFEDERATES' FLAG

Survivors of Florida Brigade Receive Colors Taken by Ohio Troops.

Marianna, Fla., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Another epic in the swiftly closing annals of the blue and the gray was witnessed tonight when Federal veterans from Ohio returned to survivors of a Florida brigade a tattered flag wrested at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., November 30, 1864.

Garbled hands gave and received the banner while voices, broken by the 63 years which have intervened, spoke only praise for the former foe.

The flag, torn by shot and shell and stained with the blood of soldiers of both North and South, was formally presented by Col. W. W. Alcorn, Toledo, Ohio, who with two comrades, Eli Bourdo and Judge E. D. Potter, are three of the six survivors of the old Fourteenth Ohio Infantry, which fought at Franklin and followed Sherman on his historic march through Georgia.

NURSE SEEN KISSING RECTOR AFTER WIFE HAD DIED, BOY SAYS

Minister's Son Testifies at Trial of Woman in Poisoning.

"PROUD I LOVE YOU," SHE SAID IN LETTER

Miss Atkinson Often Laughs at Testimony in Enid, Okla.; Doctor on Stand.

Enid, Okla., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Evidence to show affectionate relations existed between the Rev. Charles Bailey, Episcopal minister, and Miss Mary Atkinson, 26-year-old nurse, was introduced today at the preliminary hearing of the young woman on a charge of poisoning the rector's 18-year-old daughter, Mary Jane.

Stewart Bailey, brother of the dead girl, testified that on more than one occasion he saw the nurse kiss his father. This was soon after the death of the minister's wife, which preceded that of Mary Jane by less than two weeks.

Not sufficient poison was found in the viscera of Miss Bailey to cause her death, Dr. W. H. Bailey, Oklahoma City pathologist, reported to Dan Mitchell, Garfield County attorney, here tonight.

Dr. Bailey made the analysis of the viscera for the county authorities. Three doctors, testifying for the State, asserted that Mary Jane Bailey showed symptoms of having been administered an overdose of mixed drugs. The girl died early this month after being attended by Miss Atkinson. The other Bailey children became mysteriously ill, but recovered. Miss Atkinson had been a guest in the Bailey home for some time before the death of Mrs. Bailey and her daughter.

Objected to Her Intentions. The State alleges Miss Atkinson killed Mary Jane because the 18-year-old girl objected to the nurse's attentions to Dr. Bailey.

The minister, who has publicly denied that he was in love with the defendant, was not in court today. Young Bailey, 16, answering reluctantly questions asked by Dan Mitchell, Garfield County attorney, said that he first saw the nurse kiss his father the night after his mother's funeral. The three sat on the edge of a bed and discussed plans for the future, Stewart Bailey said.

Stewart said Miss Atkinson came to their house on Monday the day Mary Jane took sick. He said the children objected to her buying groceries "but she went ahead and did it."

"Did you ever see Miss Atkinson kiss your father?" the prosecutor asked.

"Yes," was the youth's low answer. "How long after your mother was dead?"

"Soon."

"More than once?"

"Yes."

She Came Into Bedroom. Asked to tell what he saw, the youth said:

"The first night after the funeral (his mother's) she came into the bedroom."

Catholic Women Adopt Ban on Beauty Contests

Exploitation of "Feminine Pulchritude" for "Commercial Purposes" Is Denounced in Resolution Approved Unanimously by National Council Convention.

Beauty contests, bathing beach pageants and similar displays "tending to exploit the feminine pulchritude of young women for commercial purposes" were denounced late yesterday afternoon in a resolution unanimously adopted by the National Council of Catholic Women, at their seventh annual convention in the Mayflower Hotel.

Invitation by Janitor Is Accepted by Soviet

Boston, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—William A. Ryan, Dorchester janitor and self-styled "organizer and president of the world league of cities," is the author of an invitation to the Boston tercentenary celebration, which resulted in an acceptance by the Soviet government at Moscow today. He said so himself tonight while Boston officials issued a denial that any invitations had been sent out by them.

Not only has the Moscow government been invited, but also hundreds of representatives of cities in the United States, England, France, Russia, Italy, China, Japan and India, declared Ryan.

"For four and a half years I have sent four invitations a day to cities in these countries," Ryan said. "I have not missed a day."

Ryan explained that his idea is to organize a "world conference of cities" when the tercentenary is held here in 1930. If Mayor Nichols doesn't know anything about my plans it is his own fault," he said, "because I sent him a copy of the invitation."

BEACH REMAINS HIDDEN ON ADVICE OF LAWYER

Will Be Produced in Court at Proper Time, Counsel Tells Authorities.

MADE TRIP WITH WOMAN

Hammonton, N. J., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Willis Beach, South Vineland poultry raiser, wanted on a charge of aiding and abetting in the slaying of Dr. A. William Lillendahl, on September 15, remained in hiding today while his attorney and the county prosecutor's office issued statements defending their stands.

The warrant for Beach's arrest was issued yesterday when officers were unable to find him at his home. He was free on $5,000 bail as a material witness. State troops and detectives continued their search for his detention.

"Beach has not fled the jurisdiction of the court and will be present whenever the courts want him," said Edison Hedges, of Atlantic City, his counsel. "His bond as a material witness does not say that he shall be produced before the State police or county authorities at any time."

Prosecutor Louis Repetto, of Atlantic County, on the other hand, said Beach would be arrested on sight and that he would not make any "deal" with Beach's counsel for the man's return. Repetto expressed the hope that Beach would be surrendered by his counsel and said that he would oppose any motion for his release on bail.

Jockey Armstrong Dies Following Spill

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Freddie O. Armstrong, 16, Lexington, died today at Havre de Grace, Md., as the result of injuries received Monday when Spanish Aster, which he was riding at the Havre de Grace track, stumbled and fell on him. Armstrong was under contract to the Audley Farm stable.

Moncada Candidate In Nicaraguan Race

Managua, Nicaragua, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Gen. Jose Maria Moncada, prominent as leader of the Liberals in the recent revolution, announced today his candidacy for the presidency in 1928. Gen. Moncada started for the United States this afternoon, declaring that he was going there to work for an equitable electoral law, as promised by Henry T. Simons, who was President Coolidge's representative in the Nicaraguan peace negotiations, and Gen. McCoy. The Liberal general signed the Simons pact at Tipitapa last May.

Whisky, But No Still, Found in the Tombs

New York, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Report that a whisky still had been discovered in Tombs prison was denied today by Commissioner Richard C. Patterson, jr., who admitted, however, that four half-pints of whisky and several empty bottles had been found in a cell tier.

The commissioner said he would push an investigation to discover the source of the contraband.

MAGRUDER DEFENDS HIS NAVAL CHARGES BEFORE SECRETARY

Says Newspaper Telling of His Scowls Quoted Him Incorrectly.

REAR ADMIRAL DENIES BREAKING ANY RULES

Visit Outgrowth of Wilbur's Demand for Explanation of Press Story.

Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder appeared before Secretary of the Navy Wilbur yesterday to explain whether or not he should be deemed guilty of insubordination. He pleaded not guilty and as a result his interview with the Secretary on the magazine article he wrote which has caused so much comment was transformed to a glowing memory, interspersed with a few hot coals that may at any time be rekindled.

Afterward Secretary of the Navy Wilbur said that so far as "punitive action" is concerned, the matter is closed. Therefore no attempt will be made to punish Admiral Magruder. The magazine article, however, contained "many statements," the Secretary added, and so far as the study of these statements and the way in which they reflect on the organization of the department is concerned, the matter is still open.

The interview with the Secretary, it developed, was not directly the result of the article, but rather of a newspaper article appearing Saturday morning in the New York Times pertaining to the magazine article. Admiral Magruder's reply to a telegram sent him by Secretary Wilbur concerning this article was an immediate telephone request that he be permitted to come to Washington and see the Secretary.

Reply Covers Several Pages. The interview was arranged through Secretary Wilbur's secretary, and yesterday afternoon Admiral Magruder appeared. He filed a reply to the telegram—a complete explanation—several pages in length. This Secretary Wilbur would not make public.

In the telegram, Secretary Wilbur demanded to know if Admiral Magruder had been quoted correctly by the New York Times. Admiral Magruder replied, according to the Secretary, that he had not been correctly quoted in the article.

In an interview with a newspaper correspondent later, he reiterated the statement and hurled a few verbal shafts at the article in the Times. The article, he said, spoke of sundry scowls and peevish gestures as accompanying his statements, when as a matter of fact, he said, he gave the interview over the telephone.

The article, coming on the heels of the volcanic turbulence created by the magazine article, made it appear that Admiral Magruder was issuing a challenge. He was quoted in the article as saying, "They may send me to Guam, but they won't court-martial me." If correctly quoted, Rear Admiral Magruder was guilty of downright insubordination, it was said, and it was on this score that an explanation was demanded of him.

Believes Article Was Correct. Admiral Magruder explained to the Secretary that he regretted if his magazine article had caused him any embarrassment, he said afterward.

According to his statement, he told Secretary Wilbur in their hour-and-a-half conference, that although his article may have been "lurid in spots," he believed it to be substantially correct.

He explained also, he said, that he had no criticism to make of any official of the Navy Department or naval officer, but desired to cooperate with the department to the full extent of his ability.

Admiral Magruder avowed that he would not be court-martialed—a statement which tallies with that quoted in the Times. He explained that he had not violated any naval regulation, since naval regulations require that articles for publication shall be filed with the department, but do not state whether they shall be filed before or after publication. Prior to 1922 the regulations required filing before publication, but the regulations later were amended. He had filed the article as required, he said.

Assures Secretary of Cooperation. Secretary Wilbur said Admiral Magruder had assured him of his desire to cooperate with the Navy Department and to work "in harmony" with it.

As to the purpose of his visit Rear Admiral Magruder explained he came to visit his daughter, the wife of Lieut. Comdr. S. O. Grieg, and her children.

Secretary Wilbur touched on another of Admiral Magruder's statements in the magazine article, which leaves the implication that, although the matter has been cleared up in personal interview, the article has left a few glowing coals which may be a long time dying. As to Admiral Magruder's statements concerning wasteful correspondence, he had sent out a circular letter about a year ago to heads of all bureaus and departments requesting suggestions as

FRANCE MAY FORCE DOTY TO SERVE OUT TERM WITH ARMY

Pardoned From Prison, Young
American's Fate Rests
With War Ministry.

POINT TO BE DECIDED BY OFFICIALS TODAY

Soldier of Fortune's Father
Says That When He Comes Home He Must Work.

Paris, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The immediate future of Bennett J. Doty, American, who has been pardoned by the French government after having served a part of his eight-year prison term for desertion from the foreign legion, rests entirely in the hands of the French ministry of war and still was undecided tonight.

Whether Doty, free and untrammelled, will be allowed to return home to the United States or whether under a non-discreet escort he will be taken to the foreign legion headquarters to serve the rest of his five-year enlistment with them, is yet to be determined officially.

Unlikely to See Paris.
The chances are that, according to French military law, Doty will be taken to Sidi-Bel-Abbes, Algeria, to serve the remaining 40 months of his enlistment.

The French ministry of war, beyond stating that Doty's pardon would be complete when signed by President Doumergue tomorrow, refused to divulge what the American member of the foreign legion would be called upon to do afterwards.

"Well, he signed for five years with the foreign legion," an official said today. "He only served eleven months. According to rules and regulations he must complete five years. That's all we know."

There is little likelihood Doty will be allowed to return to Paris. He will probably go to Marseilles, embark from there

FOCH HONORS MEMORY OF AMERICANS AT REUNION

for Oran and thence go to Sidi-Bel-Abbes. Whatever is decided will be announced at noon tomorrow.

Satisfied to Serve.
Doty himself would be perfectly satisfied to go to Morocco. That was his desire when he first enlisted. When the correspondent of the Associated Press called upon him in Albertville penitentiary last December Doty told him: "Get me out of here. I don't care where I go, but get me away from behind these walls."

When informed that he might have to go to Algeria or Morocco where the weather conditions were much more inclement than the delightful Savoie temperature, he said, "I don't care how cold it is. Give me the open air. These stone walls simply stifle me."

Doty's fifteen months in jail do not count as part of his five years enlistment. He must take that up where he left off when the smell of the waters of the River Jordan reaching him in the wilds of the Syrian Desert proved too much for his solitary life and he made off for Palestine.

"I don't care much what I do, whether I plow fields or play chaperone to keep and battle, so long as I don't continue making pants for soldiers," he said recently.

Must Work, Says Father.
Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Bennett J. Doty, whose soldiering ended in a French prison, is going to be put to work when he returns home. His father, Lemuel H. Doty, a Biloxi, Miss., lawyer, told the Memphis Evening Appeal over the telephone today about his plans.

"I expect him to remain at home this time," said the elder Doty. "He will be put immediately to work and kept busy. Writing was his own choosing and he probably will resume it at once. He has done some newspaper and magazine writing."

Young Doty, who is a native of Memphis, where he was leader of the "Evergreen Gang," a group of boys noted for dapper pranks, served with distinction in the American expeditionary force, later fought with the Spanish army in Morocco and then with the French foreign legion in Syria. He grew homesick while fighting the Druses in Syria and was found guilty of "abandoning his post before armed rebels." Pleadings of American officials got him an 8-year sentence instead of death, and then he was found guilty of desertion.

The lad's father said today he had sent money to his Paris attorney to defend him and his son's expenses home and sent instructions to "put him on the first available boat for home."

TEX RICKARD NAMED IN FILM PROSECUTION

He characterized the claims of the producers that the film was reproduced in Los Angeles as "fantastic," and declared that an attempt was being made to make the Government the "goat" in the case.

New York, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Tex Rickard, fight promoter, had received no information of a warrant being issued for his arrest at San Francisco in connection with the showing of Tunney-Dempsey fight pictures there. It was said at his office today.

In Rickard's absence, his secretary pointed out that Rickard had not been promoter of the Tunney-Dempsey fight and that he had had nothing to do with the motion pictures of the bout.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Motion pictures of the Dempsey Tunney fight went on display in a dozen downtown theaters here today despite threats of Federal action. Owners declared there is nothing in the Federal law that prohibits interstate transportation of films to prevent exhibition of prints made after the original films reach the State.

The original film reached here last night and after a number of prints were made the transported film was surrendered to Federal authorities.

Cruces, Nayarit, today said 40 bandits were killed and 2 taken prisoner by Mexican federal troops in fighting at Las Cruces Monday.

The federal troops were in command of Col. Barmidiano Gonzales. The bandits' chief, "El Piliro," with his new lieutenant, Daniel Cruz, retired from the engagement and retreated into the hills.

The government troops carried out a surprise attack on the outlaws who had established headquarters at Acaponeta, a small rail town near the Sinaloa state boundary. Almost daily attacks on trains have been reported in that vicinity.

LEGIONNAIRES VISIT VATICAN AND TOMB OF UNKNOWN DEAD

Pope Welcomes Veterans in Paternal Review; Talks
With Many of Them.

SCENE AT MONUMENT IS IMPRESSIVE EVENT

Detachments of Troops in Square Salute Party
From America.

Rome, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Rome extended open arms today to the 280 members of the American Legion headed by National Commander Howard P. Savage, who made the pilgrimage to the Eternal City. The celebration of the legionnaires' visit took on various forms, which the friendship of Italy for America was warmly demonstrated.

First came a solemn ceremony at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, to which the legionnaires marched, through streets where the Stars and Stripes and the Italian tricolor lavishly were entwined. Detachments of infantry, cavalry, artillery, the aviation corps and naval men, with lines of Fascist militia in their black shirts, flanked the legionnaires.

The most picturesque reception of the day was at the Vatican. When the flags of the Americans reached the courtyard of St. Damaso, the papal gentlemen and the Papal Guard rendered military honors. Led by the papal master of ceremonies and preceded by Mgr. Burke and Vice Rector Breslin, all mounted the snow-covered steps of the Vatican.

When Commander Savage and his other legionnaires arrived, the Municipal Band struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner," all standing at attention, followed by the Italian royal march and the Fascist hymn, "Giovinezza." Many of the Americans gave the Fascist salute, with right arm outstretched.

Prince Potenziani, with other officials, received the guests, while his daughter Miriam entertained the American women. A feature of the reception was a musical and after that sumptuous refreshments, in the course of which the governor and the national commander exchanged toasts and felicitations.

After a short wait, the arrival of the Pope was announced. The pontiff then entered. He was preceded by the Noble Guard and members of the ecclesiastical court, including Mgrs. Mella and Callori and the Rev. Joseph Wolff, head chaplain of the legionnaires.

The benignant figure of the pontiff stood out in his white cassock with a white cap, sash and slippers, the only color being a large pectoral cross suspended from a gold chain and the episcopal ring shining on his right hand.

Mgr. Burke presented the leaders of the legionnaires with whom the Pope talked for some time. He spoke especially with Howard P. Savage, retiring commander of the legion. The pontiff took great interest in the flag of the legionnaires, examining it and repeating the words printed upon it.

Afterward the Pope, followed by Mr. Burke, the vice rector, and the Rev. Wolff went around the legionnaires, each one of whom kissed his hand. He said a few words to some of them. When he came to Frank Schobel, of Philadelphia, who was blinded in the war, the pontiff put his hands on Schobel's head, saying, "May the Lord bless you, dear boy, for what you have done and for what you have suffered. We are sure He will give you strength to undergo deprivation, also rewarding you."

The Pope then sat on the throne and delivered a short address, in which he thanked the legionnaires for having come to Rome. He expressed great satisfaction to see them as guests "in this house of the father of all the faithful."

Review Is Paternal.
He was very glad to review the legionnaires, "not as a military but as a paternal review," he continued. Smiling, he added, "thus making the personal acquaintance with each one of you representing millions of Americans so dear to my heart." The Pope said he was indeed gratified that such large numbers of American legionnaires should come from such a distant country.

He said he was also pleased because they presented the recanted two figures of particular interest in the history of the world, "first, the World War; second, the contribution given by young Americans—still young today for their part in that decisive moment for the future of old Europe and of the whole world."

The pontiff ended by saying that with these sentiments he imparted to all the apostolic benediction, blessing especially their great country, expressing his best wishes for her prosperity and happiness, as much as it is possible to reach on earth. He also blessed everybody dear to the legionnaires and all religious objects carried by them.

Vice Rector Breslin translated the speech into English, and it was greeted by uproarious cheering from the entire group of legionnaires. The party was photographed by the papal photographer in the courtyard of St. Damaso.

Tribute to Unknown.
Marching between cheering lines of Italians, 260 members of the American Legion good-will party, headed by Commander Savage, proceeded to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier today to pay their tribute to the one who represents Italy's sacrifice in the World War.

Henry F. Fletcher, the American Ambassador, stood beside Commander Savage and the other legion dignitaries during the ceremony, at which the Italian army, navy, air force and Fascist militia were largely represented. The Americans deposited on the tomb a wreath tied with ribbons in the American and Italian colors.

A number of Italian veterans blinded in the war were among the cheering throngs along the line of march. The legionnaires were greeted with shouts

Bootleggers' Victim Riddled With Bullets

New York, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The name of Tony Salvatore Barbera, 36, has been added to the long list of victims of bootleggers' feuds.

Slumped over the steering wheel of an automobile, Tony's bullet riddled body was found today by a traffic patrolman who had been guiding school children across the street a short distance away.

Cryptic notations on slips of paper referring to "cases" led police to place the death in the category bluntly headed "bootleggers' feuds." There was no definite clue to the slayers.

Edinburgh, Scotland, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Constance Talmadge, American motion picture star, wearing a black costume with pale blue collars and cuffs and a dark blue close-fitting hat, entered the witness box today and gave testimony in her divorce suit against Capt. Alastair William Macintosh, whose counsel announced that the action would not be defended.

Miss Talmadge was permitted to remain seated while the evidence was taken before Lord Fleming, who addressed her as "Mrs. Macintosh" throughout the procedure. She spoke in clear firm tones. Her petition alleged misconduct by Capt. Macintosh at Brighton, England, last June.

A crowd in the courtroom craned their necks for a glimpse of the American movie star, who was accompanied by counsel and other legal representatives. Numerous court dignitaries and members of the bar remained to hear her evidence, publication of which is forbidden by the British law. Other evidence in the case will be heard October 15.

Nationalist Nuptials Said to London, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The god of love once more seems to have won over the god of war in the Chinese nationalist movement.

The Riga correspondent of the Daily Mail quotes an official Soviet dispatch to the effect that Eugene Chen, former nationalist foreign minister, and Mme. Sun Yat Sen, widow of the father of the nationalists, were married in Moscow.

(This follows closely upon the heels of the Shanghai romance of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, former nationalist generalissimo, and Miss Meiling Soong, sister of Sun and a Wellesley graduate.)

The newspaper reports the couple intend to pass their honeymoon in China by starting a new revolution, and adds that the third communist international is financing the activities of the bridal couple.

REYNOLDS, FOUND, IS RETURNING HOME

Heir to Tobacco Millions Is on Way From St. Louis;
Will Visit Chicago.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Richard J. Reynolds, 21-year-old heir to the Reynolds tobacco fortune, who was found here last night following his disappearance in New York September 17, left here today for Chicago and New York.

C. C. Ruston, manager of the Hargrave detective agency received a telegram from the young millionaire from Belleville, Ill., late today which stated he had departed for New York by way of Chicago.

"Today I had some long distance calls to make," the telegram stated, "and I did not wish to be disturbed. I have completed them and am off for Chicago and New York. Good luck and thank you kindly for your aid and courteous treatment."

Ruston said Reynolds apparently is motoring to Chicago, or took an inter-urban car from Belleville to Madison, where he caught the Illinois Central train for Chicago. There is no through train from Belleville to Chicago.

of "Long Live America!" and "Long Live the Legion!"

Rome presented one of its best aspects this morning when the legionnaires went to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, a golden sun in the bluest kind of sky giving a cheerful background to the solemn ceremony. The stars and stripes waved everywhere together with the Italian tricolor.

Minute of Solemn Silence.
The Piazza Venezia, one of the largest in Rome, which faces the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, was flanked by detachments of infantry, cavalry, artillery, aviation and sailors in their smart uniforms contrasting with the severe somber black shirts of the Fascist militia.

When the American procession appeared, preceded by the American and legion flags, immediately followed by Ambassador Fletcher and Commander Savage, both tall, erect and imposing, all the military bands in the square resounded with "The Star-Spangled Banner." The soldiers presented arms in salute and the crowd applauded enthusiastically.

Slowly the procession crossed the piazza and mounted the great marble staircase of the monument to Victor Emmanuel in the center, where, under the altar of the mother country, in the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, there a wreath was laid, the bands stopped playing, and all knelt in silence. For one minute the solemn hush held. The entire life of the Eternal City seemed suspended.

Then Ambassador Fletcher and Commander Savage rose and the legionnaires of American veterans descended the staircase and crossed the piazza in the midst of an ever-increasing enthusiasm, which the legionnaires, marching, while from windows and balconies handkerchiefs, parasols and fans waved fanatically in greeting.

Even when abandoned after the procession, the legionnaires continued to be the object of constant demonstrations of friendship and admiration from all classes of people.

Reception in Capitol.
The day ended with a great reception in the capital given by the Governor of Rome, Prince Potenziani. The Capitol was brilliantly illuminated and decorated with ancient tapestry hanging from the windows, with American and Italian flags and the fourteen historic flags of the districts of the city. Policemen and firemen in full-dress uniform rendered military honors, while footmen in medieval dress lined the grand staircase holding lighted tapers.

The bridegroom's hand clasped the wheel of his automobile and his bride of a few hours had her arm about him. In the fog and rain last night, apparently, Pirki missed a turn after crossing the Wisconsin River bridge at Portage and the automobile plunged over a 15-foot embankment.

Nearly 24 hours later State highway commission employees found the car and bodies.

GUSTAVE HECKSCHER WEDS STAGE STAR

Son of Philanthropist Takes Luella Gear, 28, as Bride at New York.

New York, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Gustave Maurice Heckscher, son of August Heckscher, philanthropist, and Luella Gear, musical comedy star, were married here today.

It was the second matrimonial venture for both. The new Mrs. Heckscher was divorced from Byron D. Chandler, known on Broadway as "the Millionaire Kid." Heckscher was divorced by Louise Vanderhoef Heckscher in Paris last July.

The Gear-Chandler wedding took place in Greenwich, Conn., in September, 1919. They were divorced in 1924.

Heckscher and his first wife had been married for 20 years, but had been separated for several years prior to their divorce.

In obtaining the marriage license, Heckscher gave his age as 42. Miss Gear said she was 28.

LEGISLATION TO AID MERCHANT MARINE THREATENS TAX OUT

Members of Congress, Who Feel Legislation for Ships
Necessary, Growing.

PLANS FORMULATING TO PRESS JONES BILL

Measure Would Commit Government to Ownership, Operation of Steamship Lines.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The country's merchant marine, or its effort to maintain one, is looming to further jeopardize the tax reduction at the next session, about which President Coolidge especially is so confident. A growing number of senators and members of the House are convinced that something must be definitely done at this session for the merchant ships and the majority of those interested believe that the Government should definitely go into the steamship business.

Plans are, in fact, to press the Jones bill of the last session which would definitely commit the Government to a policy of owning and operating the vessels.

The Shipping Board has given warning that the question of what to do with the tonnage now owned must be definitely decided. And it is in favor of further appropriations to maintain and keep in repair the vessels now owned with a view to their disposal to private interests whenever suitable offers are made.

Opposed by President.

The President, on the other hand, thinks the country has been burdened with them long enough and he wants them sold. It is not believed that he would directly advocate their being sacrificed, but without going into details or arguing with the Shipping Board over offers it has received, he wants them disposed of.

Only recently he brightened up at the suggestion of E. N. Hurley, former chairman of the board, that the vessels be turned over to railroads to operate as an extension of their service. He let it be known that if this would not result in stifling competition, he was inclined to look favorably on the proposal.

But if the incident has given the proposal any serious consideration since that time, it is highly unlikely he will definitely abandon it as so difficult of accomplishment. Senators of States who have ports, and members of the House representing port cities have already voted their objections.

They see in it a threat to their States. Senator Fletcher of Florida, declared that the Jones bill would be the Atlantic coast would be used if the railroads were permitted to obtain the vessels. A railroad, for example, running into New York and having a transatlantic extension would hardly route any business through the port of Jacksonville, Fla. Incidentally, none of the railroads rushed to embrace Hurley's suggestion.

Senator Fletcher expressed the conviction that the Jones bill would be passed at this session. He has a few amendments to offer but he said he and Senator Jones are in general agreement on them.

No Other Course, Fletcher Holds.

The Florida senator does not ordinarily favor the Government going into business, but he holds the merchant marine situation is such that it is the only thing to do. He said he could not be obtained at this time at least, for the vessels, and he can not conceive of a policy that would simply permit them to deteriorate, leaving the Government with no vessels to dispose of. The only thing to be done, as he sees it, is that the Government seriously embark upon a program of maintaining and building up its fleet.

It is unthinkable, in the senator's opinion, that the country should abandon its policy of maintaining an adequate merchant marine.

President Coolidge recently let it be known that it is a heartless task to maintain the merchant marine, in the face of the attitude of the shippers and importers and the railroads. While their failure to use American-owned vessels that has brought about the present condition, the President was represented as feeling.

Requires Large Appropriation.

Passage of the Jones bill would entail a sizeable appropriation. It is believed, not only this year but the next, and it is for this reason that Representative Bacon, of New York, a member of the House merchant marine and fisheries committee, does not believe the Jones bill will be passed. Jones is in agreement with the others that something should be done, but he does not believe anything will be done at the coming session—certainly nothing that will necessitate a large appropriation.

The Jones bill will be pressed, he agrees, but then when tax reduction comes out of the ways and means committee, anything threatening it will be thrown in the discard.

But there are some members who are not so keen for a tax slice under existing circumstances. Among the so-called progressives, opposition to a reduction has already been voiced. The surplus should be applied to the reduction of the national debt, this voice has opined.

Carrier Pigeon, State Department Spook

(Associated Press.)

Spooky sounds that troubled the western European division of the State Department Tuesday with visions of international spies were explained yesterday when a bedraggled carrier pigeon crawled out from behind the corner of the old-fashioned fireplace in the office of the chief of division and found itself securely trapped under the wire cage used to arrest sparks from wood fires.

The bird apparently had landed on the top of a chimney, as it was seen above, and fallen into the fireplace through fatigue. A band on its leg indicated it as belonging to the Monument City Concourse Association, of Baltimore.

Parole Recommended In Mail Fraud Case

(Associated Press.)

Parole of Gordon Campbell, convicted at Great Falls, Mont., of using the mails to defraud, has been recommended by the parole board conditional on dismissal of the pending indictment against him.

Attorney General Sargent is expected to pass on the board's recommendation as soon as it is determined whether the United States attorney who tried Campbell will dismiss the pending indictment. According to a rule of the Department of Justice a parole can not be granted so long as a parole indictment is pending.

ADMIRAL DEFENDS HIS STATEMENTS

to ways in which the great amount of correspondence could be reduced, and savings effected, he said.

The result was, he explained, that a great many valuable suggestions were received. Many of these were put into practice and good results were accomplished. And in July, the Secretary said, Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, commander of the New York Navy Yard, and therefore next door neighbor of Admiral Magruder, who is commander of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, wrote him concerning this same problem of excessive correspondence and suggested that additional efforts be made to reduce it.

The Secretary left the implication, therefore, that what Admiral Magruder said in his article about wasteful correspondence is an old problem which the department has been trying for some time to solve, and therefore nothing new at all. And with this implication, there is a slight, but most subtle intimation that Admiral Magruder's thoughts as to wasteful correspondence would have been much more appreciated if they had been addressed in a letter to the Secretary of the Navy, after the manner of Rear Admiral Plunkett, rather than to a magazine.

1,000 TO BE LAID OFF AT PHILADELPHIA YARD

Navy Department Declared to Lack Money to Keep Men Employed.

(Associated Press.)

Because of lack of specific appropriations, Assistant Secretary Robinson of the Navy, has informed Senator-elect Vane of Pennsylvania, that more than 1,000 men will be thrown out of work at the Philadelphia Navy Yard within the next month.

Mr. Vane and representatives of affiliated crafts at the yard had personally appealed to the Navy Department to provide for continuing employment of the men, now about to be discharged.

Mr. Vane and representatives of affiliated crafts at the yard had personally appealed to the Navy Department to provide for continuing employment of the men, now about to be discharged.

Work provided at the Philadelphia yard but unappropriated for includes the modernization of the battleship Oklahoma.

Mr. Robinson said there would be enough additional work to keep part of the force engaged, but he predicted that more than 1,000 men would be laid off.

Philadelphia yard is in command of Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, who stirred up a controversy by charging in a magazine article that the Navy Department was extravagant in its expenditures for shore stations and navy yards.

FILIPINO LEGISLATION IS PROPOSED BY WORK

Does Not Want Islands in Interior Department Under Jones Law.

(Associated Press.)

After a study of the legal questions involved, Secretary of the Interior Work has informed President Coolidge that there should be new and comprehensive legislation covering the matter in case the administration decides to transfer the Philippine Islands from control of the War Department to the Department of the Interior.

"I would not want to attempt administration of the Philippine Islands under the present Jones law," said Secretary Work, explaining that, in his opinion, the provisions would not accord to the Interior Department sufficient control.

There had been a suggestion from some quarters previously that the President might make the proposed transfer by means of an executive order following precedents established by previous Presidents. While the War Department has not opposed the proposed transfer openly, it is understood that the subject of control of the Philippines, and in all probability will make an effort to bring influence to bear in that direction.

PRECEDENT IS FOUND FOR 'I DO NOT CHOOSE'

Used by Lord Palmerston, of England, Senator
Gillett Says.

Senator Gillett, Republican, of Massachusetts, has dug up a precedent for the President's "I do not choose" statement. He related it to the President yesterday. It was during the reign of Queen Victoria. Lord Palmerston and John Russell, her two prime ministers, were in a controversy and Lord Palmerston said to the king:

"I do not choose to be rubbed into the dirt by Johnny Russell." Whether the statement was taken as sincere or as a joke, it was a precedent for the President's statement.

Massachusetts understands the meaning of the President's statement, though, the senator said. However, it clings to the hope that there might come a time in the convention when the President would be elected to a second term.

Conference Is Begun On Floating Oysters

(Associated Press.)

Conferences were begun yesterday by representatives of New Jersey oyster producers and the Department of Agriculture officials concerning a decision under the food and drugs act which prevents the shipment of oysters in commerce of oysters which have been artificially increased in weight by floating or other means. The producers' representatives declared the oystermen wanted to comply with the law and desired to remove all objectionable processes. Sessions will be continued in an effort to reach an agreement.

By an amended decision ten years ago, the department permitted the shipment of floated oysters if so labeled, but later extensive experiments it was decided that their shipment in interstate commerce constituted violation of the law. The amendment was repeated, effective September 1, and notice was given that the department would proceed against all shipments of floated oysters.

FRANCE ASKS DELAY IN PUBLISHING DATA ON TARIFFS DISPUTE

Request Considered to Mean
Paris Cabinet Wants
Time to Confer.

(Associated Press.)

Delay until next week at the request of the French government of publication of the Franco-American tariff correspondence announced yesterday at the State Department, created an impression in Washington that a definite decision by the Paris government was to be expected, probably by Saturday, on its policy as to commercial duty negotiations with the United States.

INFORMATION SOUGHT ON AMERICAN STATUTE

Preliminary Report Given to President as Result of Federal Survey.

(Associated Press.)

Delay until next week at the request of the French government of publication of the Franco-American tariff correspondence announced yesterday at the State Department, created an impression in Washington that a definite decision by the Paris government was to be expected, probably by Saturday, on its policy as to commercial duty negotiations with the United States.

There was no advance intimation as to what reply is to be expected on the tariff correspondence. The French government is understood to be waiting for a preliminary report to the President dealing with French discriminations against American goods for a long period of years.

The attention of the Paris government is understood to have been called to a Tariff Commission report in 1919 which lays down for American tariff-making procedure the principle of equal treatment for all nations, the basis of the present tariff act and of the representations made by the State Department to the French government in urging negotiation of a most favored nation treaty to eliminate existing and prevent future tariff discriminations between the two countries.

Exceptions Noted.

In that report the Tariff Commission called attention to "possible exceptions to the principle of equal treatment," noting that these fell into two classes, those due to "special political and economic conditions," and those due to "the existence of the United States and Cuba, and those due to long frontier lines common to both countries."

U. S. Claimed Veto Right.

Dr. Urrutia quoted from the report of members of the World Court that the fifth American reservation appeared to rest upon the presumption that requests for advisory opinions required unanimity of the council.

But, he added, "no such presumption so far has been established."

Like Senator Villegas, he preferred to avoid a definite decision on this issue. On this the council agreed, and the question still remains open. The disagreement was postponed until the next meeting of the council, December 5, at Geneva.

The United States claimed the right to establish an international cinematographic institute at Rome was accepted today by the council, which asked Italy to make suggestions concerning the institute, which will be under the direction of the league.

Objection by Colombia.

The Colombian delegate presented an objection to the council today to leaving the nomination of the five judges who will make the treaty on international law to the acting president of the council. He withdrew his objection when it was stated that the nomination would be made at this moment to pick out five persons possessing all the qualifications required.

This committee is the one upon which George Wickes, former Attorney General of the United States, will probably be appointed, together with a jurist from Latin America.

The eighth assembly of the league, just closed, is regarded by practically all the delegates as having materially advanced the cause of international law.

The most striking manifestations were the branding of war as an international crime, the determination to construct some machinery of security to allay the fears of nations subject to attack, and expressions of the belief that the league of nations everywhere will encourage and support the leaders of government in favor of an anti-war "chime."

More than any other assembly, observers say, the one which adjourned yesterday resembled a big family, with the delegates, drawn from over fifty nations, actually by a common motive in persistently striving to organize the fight against war and seemingly convinced that the fight can never be won unless it is universal in breadth.

WIFE BARRED TO U. S. BY FAULTY PASSPORT

Logan's Failure to Fill Out
Papers Properly Delays
Her Admission.

(Associated Press.)

Failure of William A. Logan, of Louisville, Ky., to properly fill out a petition entry of his wife, formerly Miss Jean Logan, of Edinburgh, Scotland, is all that is delaying her admission to the United States, it was said yesterday at the Labor Department.

Only one would be temporary, as in the case of Logan's beauty contest winner, had not been granted immediate permission to come to this country, since her husband is an American citizen.

Logan's Secretary Husband explained that the young woman's difficulty only would be temporary as instructions would be issued to give her a passport as soon as her husband fills out the corrected application.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The wife has been cleared for entry into the United States of Mrs. Logan and she is expected to come to Louisville at once to join her husband. Logan, formerly of Birmingham, Ala., but now in business here, received a telegram that effect today from Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, who has been aiding him in his predicament.

Special to The Washington Post.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Sept. 28.—Some old boy got $3,500 damages for kissing his own wife publicly. His defense at the trial was that it was mistaken identity and that the moon drove him to it. Give credit for one thing, he didn't lay it on to drink.

ALLEGED PIRATE FLEES, BUT RETURNS TO JAIL

Nesle, American, Who Helped Seize Ship, Removed by British for Trial.

(Associated Press.)

Testimony at the hearing was that the seizure occurred about 1 mile off Gun Key light, it was said. Ensign E. E. Hahn, commanding the Coast Guard cutter, had received information that a ship was aboard the cutter which had been captured by the cutter.

Hahn had declared that Nesle was acting as pilot aboard the cutter. The cutter was seized by the cutter.

A wireless dispatch to the Miami Daily News from its Nassau correspondent, quoted the following communication by A. C. Burns, secretary of the colonial government at Nassau:

Pending removal to Nassau, Nesle was placed in the jail at Bimini. On the night of September 26, it appears that he either escaped or was removed from the jail but he gave himself up the following morning.

To obviate any chance of the prisoner again escaping or being removed, it was proposed to send him by seaplane to Nassau.

Like Senator Villegas, he preferred to avoid a definite decision on this issue. On this the council agreed, and the question still remains open. The disagreement was postponed until the next meeting of the council, December 5, at Geneva.

The United States claimed the right to establish an international cinematographic institute at Rome was accepted today by the council, which asked Italy to make suggestions concerning the institute, which will be under the direction of the league.

REPAIR WORK ON LEVES HURRIED, COOLIDGE TOLD

Reassured by Gen. Jadwin of Progress When Mc-
Kellar Fears Delay.

(Associated Press.)

President Coolidge took quick action yesterday to determine the progress of levee repair work in the flood region, after Senator McKellar of Tennessee had told him that at the rate repairs were being made the season would be open to another flood next spring.

After hearing the Tennessee senator, the President summoned Maj. Gen. Edgewood Jadwin, chief of Army engineers, who assured him that the flood area need have no fear of a recurrence of the floods.

Senator McKellar urged an extra session of Congress. The Government is doing the best it can, he said, but it has not enough money at present to carry on the levee repair work fast enough. Unless the breaks are repaired soon, he said, the rainy season will set in and then the breaks could not be closed until next June.

Gen. Jadwin said the work was proceeding but he declined to say where the funds were coming from. Comptroller General McCarl ruled that rivers and harbors funds could be used but subsequently it was made known that the money was being expended from some source, the Comptroller General notwithstanding.

CRIME GROWS FASTER THAN U. S. POPULATION

(Associated Press.)

Crime as evidenced by admissions to State prisons is growing faster than the population of the United States, figures announced yesterday by the Census Bureau show.

Complete returns from 31 States covering 88 of a total of 99 State prisons and reformatories listed 27,018 new prisoners received by these institutions in 1926, as compared with 21,054 in 1923, the first prison census year, or an increase of 28.3 per cent. There were 341 prisoners per 100,000 population in 1926, as against 27.9 in 1923.

The total inmates in 38 institutions on January 1 last was 63,828, as against 47,378 on January 1, 1923. The States covered, Ohio led in both new prisoners received and total inmates. Its four institutions received 3,171 prisoners during the year, and the total was 9,144.

States which received more than 1,000 new inmates were: Texas, 1,979; California, 1,782; Illinois, 1,729; Oklahoma, 1,683; Missouri, 1,609; Pennsylvania, 1,531; Kentucky, 1,365; and Kansas, 1,256.

LOWDEN'S SILENCE FAILS TO RESTRICT FRIENDS' ACTIVITIES

Former Governor Apparently Is Making No Move to Launch Candidacy.

MIDWEST SUPPORTERS
START SEVERAL BOOMS

Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Other Delegations Urge Him to Enter Race.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 28.—Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, apparently has made no personal move toward launching his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the Presidency. Mr. Lowden recently returned to his home at Oregon, Ill., after a vacation in the East, to begin a survey of the presidential field from the vantage point of his home State.

Since the announcement by President Coolidge that his choice ran counter to another term, Mr. Lowden has been asked frequently as to his intentions. His replies usually have concerned the weather or some other subject remote from politics. He still persists in declining to make a definite statement concerning his views on the presidential campaign, although delegations from Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Indiana and other States have visited him and urged him to announce his candidacy.

Prefers to Wait, He Says.

"I haven't been back from my vacation long enough to get an intelligent idea of what has been happening," he said. "I would prefer to say nothing on the subject just now."

Mr. Lowden, however, has had several conferences with Clarence Buck, who has been looking after the Lowden prospects in the central States.

A rumor that Mr. Lowden would issue a statement last Saturday which had gained considerable circulation, failed to materialize.

"There will be plenty of time for announcements when there is something to announce," Mr. Lowden said.

Just what Mr. Lowden plans to do in regard to the beginning of an active campaign only can be conjectured. Whether it is the intention to establish headquarters in Chicago, or when such a step would be taken, if at all, has not been learned.

Friends Are Going Ahead.

Some of Mr. Lowden's friends are going ahead with their plans to make him the next President notwithstanding the fact that the former governor has failed to approve their plans. It was announced in New York on September 6 by William H. Crawford, political writer, that the first definite move to bring about Mr. Lowden's nomination would be started by Chicago friends who would open "Lowden headquarters" at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

When a delegation of Nebraskans visited Mr. Lowden late this summer in an effort to get an expression from him, the former governor repeated the statements he had made to earlier delegations. He told them he had never heard of a man running away from the Presidency, but was non-committal in his response when they urged him to become a candidate.

The Nebraska delegation was headed by Gov. Adam McMullen, who last summer left the Coolidge camp. Gov. McMullen presented a resolution signed by 22 Nebraskans of prominence, half of whom, according to Gov. McMullen, were active farmers and stockmen.

Boom Started in Iowa.

The Lowden-for-President boom has already been started in Iowa. It was in June that more than 3,000 persons gathered on the Emmetsburg, Iowa, picnic grounds to listen to Frank J. Lund, chairman of the Iowa Lowden league, and former campaign manager for Smith W. Brookhart, score President Coolidge for "failing to heed the cry of agriculture" and plead for an organized fight behind Lowden against "the betrayers of the Middle West."

In a straw vote for President taken at the meeting in August of the Illinois Agricultural Association, four out of five Republican ballots were cast for Lowden. There were only 87 Democratic ballots cast and of these were for Gov. Al Smith of New York. Similar stories come from Missouri and Indiana. At a recent meeting of the Missouri Farmers Association a resolution endorsing Lowden for President was adopted.

Gov. John Hammill of Iowa most of the State executives, and more than 80 per cent of the employees in the Iowa Capitol building have signed a petition pledging their support to the former Illinois governor.

Airport, Portland, Oreg., Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Leslie C. Miller, of Des Moines, Iowa, was the first to land here in the class B air race from Spokane to Portland. He alighted at 12:34:55. His elapsed time was 4 hours 31 minutes and 55 seconds.

Miller was officially declared winner of the first prize of $1,000 in the class B race.

C. W. Meyers, of Detroit, landed second. His elapsed time was 4 hours 43 minutes and 24 seconds.

Gerard F. Smith, of Tacoma, landed third. His elapsed time was 4 hours 49 minutes and 55 seconds.

Jack Parrish, of Portland, landed fourth.

D. W. Morrow Praised By His Predecessor

New York, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—James R. Sheffield, retiring Ambassador to Mexico, returning from a two months' visit to Europe on the liner Emerald today, expressed pleasure in President Coolidge's choice of Dwight W. Morrow, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., as successor.

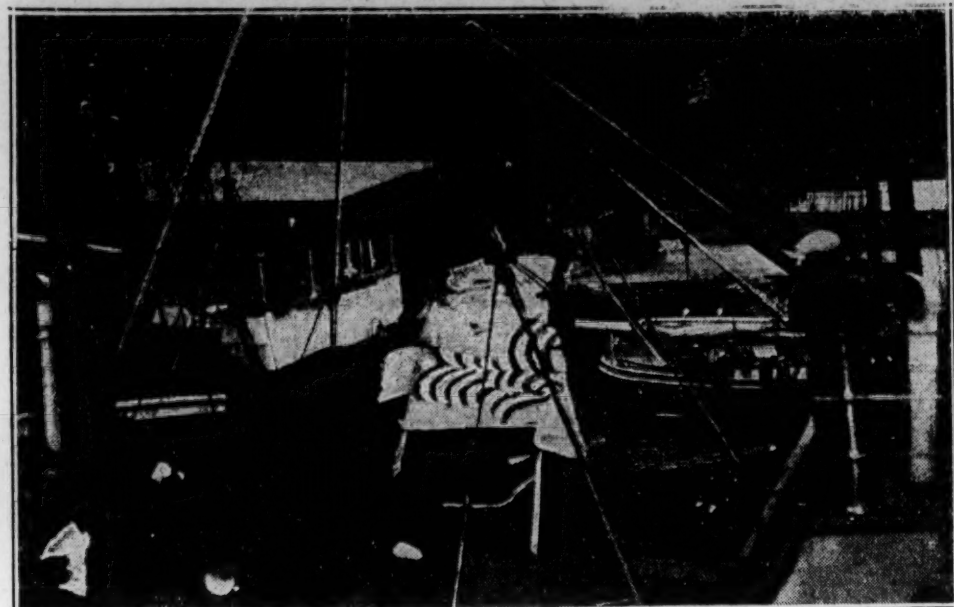

"He is a man of highest character, very able and I think has the confidence of every one who knows him," said Mr. Sheffield. "He is a man who will go to Mexico as the ambassador of the American people. The interests of the republic are always first with him."

London, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Frederick d'Amato, a professor of architecture at Princeton University, is in a critical condition aboard the steamship Aquitania after a difficult operation performed at sea, says a wireless dispatch from the ship to the Evening News.

The dispatch says that Prof. d'Amato made his will before entering the operating room. The Aquitania left Southampton for New York on September 24.

KOENNECKE IN IRAK; DELAYED BY TURKEY

Landing at Bagdad Clears Up
Mystery of Whereabouts of German Flier.

Bagdad, Iraq, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Lieut. Otto Koennecke, pilot of the German plane, whose arrival here yesterday cleared up the mystery of his whereabouts since his take-off from Angora, Turkey, on Saturday, today said that his delay in reaching this place had been due chiefly to the instructions given him by the Turkish authorities on leaving Angora as to the route to be followed.

The German aviator, who is en route to the United States by way of the Orient, said that the instructions involved a wide detour, the Turkish idea apparently being to prevent foreign aviators from flying over certain areas of Turkish territory.

Lieut. Koennecke, who was accompanied by his financial backer, Count Solms-Laubach, and Johannes Hermann, radio operator, said that he had halted at Aleppo and then had deferred his departure for Bagdad in order to avoid flying in the hottest part of the day.

HUGHES GAINING IN FAVOR OVER HOOVER IN COLORADO

and the State organization have also been put in the Hoover camp, but it is evident that the men who will actually name the delegates, are still in an undecided, uncertain frame of mind.

Representative Charles B. Timberlake, member of the ways and means committee and representative of a big sugar beet district, has come out with a statement for Hughes.

"There is no campaign in the State for any Republican candidate," Fred O. Roof, chairman of the State committee two years ago, is ready to join a Lowden movement if one is started. In this agricultural State he would put Lowden's chances ahead of the others. Objections voiced to Hoover are that he did not know his party affiliations six years ago, and the men who name presidential candidates want a man they can talk to as a party man. Gov. Murphy of Mississippi was in Denver recently and told friends here that Hoover might carry that State. Even such a possibility, that of a Republican break in the Solid South, does not alter the view of the party war horses here, who can not forget Mr. Hoover's uncertainty in party lines.

Smith May Get Six.

In the ultra-dry State of Colorado, Al Smith as candidate for President may have as high as six friends in the delegation of twelve to the national convention. This is conceded even by his opponents who are sitting uneasily while the Smith boom is getting under way.

This presents a situation that is explainable on two grounds. The first is that there is no candidate to oppose him who has captured anything but minority support. The second is that there has been a marked change in the attitude toward Smith and also in the general view on the prohibition enforcement question, with the exception of the Klan group, which was defeated

VON MALTZAN DEATH DECLARED ACCIDENT

Inquiry Commission Says One
Stay Fitting Broke; No
Sign of Sabotage.

Berlin, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—The air crash at Schleiz in which Baron Ag von Maltzan, German Ambassador to the United States, was killed, was not caused by sabotage, neglect or mismanagement, says a report made by an official inquiry commission submitted to the Ministry of Transport today.

The report says that it was ascertained from an examination of the wreckage of the plane that the upper fitting of the left back stay broke. The pilot took ample precautions while endeavoring to make a forced landing, this point being shown by the fact that the occupants had time to strap themselves down.

The court also says the machine did not take fire, but that when the plane approached the earth the left wing broke off completely and the machine dropped like a stone.

The break in the fitting, the report said, was possibly caused by a flaw or strain from vibration due to damage to the machine's propeller. The latter point will be further investigated.

The experience gained in the present case, the report said, will preclude a recurrence of the disaster.

Five Election Officials Occused at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—Criminal information charging conspiracy, false count and misdemeanor were filed against five election officials today by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner.

Named in the charges were Carmel Bevilacqua, judge; Michael Balasita, inspector and William Spad, George Levanson and Angelo Marino, clerks, all of the Seventh district of the Third ward.

The informations were based upon charges of wide discrepancies between vote tabulations on the district tally sheets of the recent primary, and figures obtained by a recount. In some cases it was charged, there was a difference of 173 votes in the two counts.

DUVAL IMPEACHMENT IS BEFORE GRAND JURY

Indianapolis Mayor May Face
Effort to Oust Him After His Conviction.

REFUSES TO QUIT OFFICE

Indianapolis, Sept. 28 (A. P.).—The Marion County grand jury may bring impeachment proceedings against Mayor John L. Duval of Indianapolis, who last week was found guilty of violating the corrupt practices act during the 1925 municipal campaign, it was learned from an authentic source here today.

Duval was found guilty by a jury last Thursday night of having made a deal with William H. Armitage, whereby he promised him the right to name two members of the board of public works and the city civil engineer, in return for $10,000 and support at the polls. Punishment was fixed at $1,000 fine, 30 days' imprisonment and disbarment from holding public office for four years from the commission of the alleged act.

The grand jury, which is investigating charges of political graft in Indiana, indicted Mayor Duval recently on a charge of violating the corrupt practices act and he is to be arraigned in criminal court next Monday. The charges in the indictment are virtually the same as those made in the affidavit on which Duval was tried last week.

Mayor Duval reiterated today that he would not resign.

The grand jury is vested with authority to bring impeachment proceedings against the mayor. The law provides that the proceedings be taken by the foreman of the grand jury to the county prosecutor and that he in turn take it into the criminal court.

Senator Walsh of Montana is the man favored by the progressive Democratic wing, but nothing is being done for him either.

The delegation will go unopposed to the convention, according to the chairman. This would insure Smith representation. One of the outstanding dry levers, former Gov. William E. Sweet, said that while he favors the nomination of Senator Walsh, he would not be surprised at the nomination of Smith.

"Smith can not win the election in any Western dry State," he said. "He will be defeated worse than John W. Davis, in New York. I will be in there to discuss the situation with some Smith leaders. I told them, and say now that not only would he fail in the West but he would lose New York."

THE SPECTER THAT WILL NOT DOWN.

The impression gained from current political comment is that the leaders of both parties are more concerned over the question of prohibition as an issue than over prohibition itself. The fundamental aspects of the situation created by the eighteenth amendment are neglected, but the wisdom of taking a party stand is debated at length. When the time for the conventions arrives there seems but little doubt that those who seek to ignore the question will have the upper hand, so that aside from a few sentences dealing with law enforcement it will be impossible to determine what either party would do with the problem.

The debate as to the expediency of taking a stand on prohibition does little to down public interest and national concern. The wet and dry question may not be one of which platforms can be built, but it literally consumes attention. The contents of any newspaper may be submitted in evidence. This week, for instance, Comptroller General McCarl ruled that the use of money by Government agents to operate a speakeasy was illegal, and Judge George W. Olney, sachem of Tammany Hall, insisted that Al Smith would be for law enforcement. The Civil Service Commission announced that it was unable to complete the assigned task of certifying applicants for enforcement jobs by October 1, and a Federal judge in the West ruled that personal injunctions obtained under the Volstead act were unconstitutional. F. Scott McBride, Antisalon League leader, launched the campaign against wet candidates in North Carolina, and Senator Overman, of the same State, forbade the use of his frank for the purpose of mailing out anti-Smith literature.

Politically prohibition may not be an issue in 1928 or in other years to come, but it is a condition that compels public interest. The day may dawn when only the politicians will refuse to recognize its presence, a circumstance which would seem impossible but for the established ability of party leaders, regardless of labels, to dodge an issue and straddle a question.

CONSOLIDATING VILLAGES.

The project to consolidate 27 Maryland communities, including nine incorporated towns, into a city is apparently gaining momentum. At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Hyattsville, addressed by John H. Thider, manager of the civic development department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. John H. Gries, chief of the division of building and housing of the Department of Agriculture, a committee of representative citizens of the communities concerned was appointed to consider the matter. Former attempts to effect consolidation of these communities have failed, usually because agreement could not be reached upon the name to be given the city, but the suggestion that the new municipality be named Maryland City met with universal approval.

Throughout the country there seems to be a tendency to consolidate small towns and communities into cities. Better streets, fire and police protection, water supply, sewage disposal, park facilities and zoning law administration are only a few of the advantages that follow such moves. Furthermore, consolidation makes for harmonious thought and action in areas the needs of which are similar. Creation of Maryland City undoubtedly would react toward the betterment of the entire area.

Fear of losing identity is usually the stumbling block in projects of this sort. Such fear, however, is unwarranted. Maryland City could be created as a political unit with the names of the communities that compose it perpetuated as its suburbs. The plan is sound and should be carried into execution.

ELECTION "REFORMS."

The last two decades have been marked by various and sundry election reforms. The wisdom of many of them is already doubtful. The weakness of others is becoming apparent daily. Conditions in Louisville are by way of being the strangest of any yet brought to public attention. Kentucky became the proud possessor of a permanent registration system some three years ago. Under the law it was only necessary for voters to register once, provided they did not change their place of registration. Provision was made for purging the registration lists of dead and removed citizens at the request of party officials.

Republicans and Democrats alike have submitted lists containing the names of those they believe should not be eligible for the franchise in Louisville. The Democratic total is 41,644, and the Republican record embraces the names of about 50,000 persons. Louisville's population, according to the 1920 census, was only 234,000, so that, allowing for duplications in the two lists, it becomes apparent that if the rival claims are upheld there will be only a small proportion of the citizens of Louisville who may vote.

The danger in the situation is that until the purging process has been completed the validity of all elections in Louisville may be disputed. It was on this ground that the last municipal election was set aside, all of the Republicans thrown out of office and the Democrats put into power. It is apparent that there can be too many innovations and "improvements" in the election laws. When they tend to vitiate the purposes for which elections are held, it is time to abolish the reforms.

PRIMARY VS. CONVENTION.

Has the general adoption of the primary system in the nomination of candidates for office brought about the selection of a better class than were chosen by the party conventions in the past? The general opinion of those who have given any thought to the subject furnishes a negative reply to that question. When nominees were selected by party conventions far more attention was paid to the character of the men whose names were to be placed on the party tickets than appears to be the case where the primary plan has superseded the convention. Without making invidious comparisons, odious as they are, it is doubtful if it is possible to name many States or municipalities in which the officers chosen at primary elections equal in character and integrity their predecessors selected in caucus or convention.

In the days of the convention the party caucus chose delegates to the convention and those delegates exercised far more care in selecting candidates than is manifested by voters in the primaries. It is comparatively an easier matter in most of the States for a candidate to "pack" a primary than to "pack" a convention. As pointed out in a communication to The Post by one who has had many years' experience in politics, "the doors are wide open to party frauds, Democrats vote at Republican primaries and Republicans vote at Democratic primaries," and in many instances the purchasable vote decides the result.

The communication referred to was instigated by the recent conviction of the Mayor of Indianapolis, who was charged and found guilty with having accepted a bribe prior to his election in return for which he had agreed to make certain appointments under the city government. The mayor was nominated at a primary, where all the voters affiliated with his party had the opportunity to aid in the nomination. Had that duty been performed in a party convention it is probable that the party would have been more careful in choosing a candidate.

Indianapolis is not the only community in which a venal politician has been able to secure a nomination for office through the medium of primary manipulation. It may almost be said that Mayor Duval's case is typical of many. Individual voters have little sense of responsibility, but party managers must offer good material if they are to hold power. The primaries, by destroying parties, are destroying the barriers which formerly helped to keep corrupt men out of office.

AIDING MURDER.

As fantastic in its horror as a play of the Grand Guignol type is the tale from St. Paul of the ten murders in eighteen months placed at the door of a single man. According to the story of a prisoner believed to have been implicated with him in some of the crimes, James Barrott embarked upon a career of murder by killing two policemen, who are alleged to have beaten him. He is said next to have killed three persons as the outgrowth of a bootlegging feud, and following that to have engaged in ruthless slaughter to cover up his crimes. He committed five more murders, according to the account, for fear that his earlier killings would be revealed. Barrott was finally killed himself by the man who now relates the strange tale.

That the dead man was insane appears to be self-evident. If he were alive, it might even be that an insanity plea would be set up in his defense. Despite all the protection which the Government attempts to set up for peaceful citizens, there can be no adequate method of preventing the ravages of a deranged mind. A maniac often escapes suspicion for a much longer time than a criminal who acts in cold blood. Some minds have difficulty in detecting the motives and impulses of those whose mental faculties are diseased.

There is one method by which murderous tendencies can be curbed. An unarmed man, whether he is sane or insane, is much less likely to kill. The promiscuous sale of firearms places homicidal aids within the reach of all. It is evident that there must be more stringent regulation of the sale of firearms. The States should follow the Government, which through denial of the mails, has made it harder for guns to be sold. There will be danger as long as it remains as easy for a man to buy a revolver as it is for him to purchase groceries. The way to end the menace is to remove all weapons from the reach of those who should not be allowed to have them.

MONEY NOT AT WORK.

The growth of the investment field in the United States is one of the most remarkable chapters in modern business. The prosperity that the country has enjoyed for more than a decade has resulted in general savings, and industry in search of capital has had a prospect in every citizen. Never before has the general public been such a heavy purchaser of stocks and bonds. Securities of the latter class have been particularly attractive. No business day passes without the flotation of several issues, in nearly every instance eagerly absorbed and often oversubscribed.

There must, however, be a large number of persons who fail to realize that a bond is not perpetual. It is only rarely that all of a given issue is redeemed at maturity, and in the case of a call provision the percentage of unreturned bonds increases. A bond that has run its course is no investment at all. It is no more than so much money in the bank, and not even that useful, since it is not at the immediate service of the holder. There are cases where a multitude of investments might confuse the holder of bonds past due, but experience has shown that in the majority of instances the unredeemed securities are in the hands of small investors who do not realize that their money is idle.

Today, for instance, is the final one on which the holders of $1,128,000,000 Second Liberty bonds may convert their purchase into Treasury notes. Thousands of persons have not taken advantage of the privilege. All interest payments will cease November 15. The Victory Loan was called in 1919. The latest Treasury statement showed that there were $3,031,000 worth of these bonds still in the possession of purchasers, who no doubt thought that their money was still working for them. The total amount carried on the books of the Treasury to redeem ancient bond issues was $11,224,510, according to the statement of August 30. The sum represents an economic loss of no mean proportions. Figured at an interest rate as low as 4 per cent the unclaimed funds would earn almost $500,000 each year. Some of the "lost" bonds represent parts of issues floated prior to and during the Civil War.

It is impossible to calculate the amount of money invested in industrial and other forms of private bonds that may be idle. Certainly it must swell the total, even though private and semipublic concerns in many instances have a much more exact record of the investors than the Government. The facts warrant a concerted effort to remedy the situation. Neither the Government nor private concerns wish to have their books cluttered up with such dead accounts. They are as anxious to redeem the bonds as the holders should be to get their money and put it to a more useful purpose. A campaign of education designed to bring past-due bonds out of their hiding places is needed to complete the investment training of the American people.

HOW THE GOVERNMENT SAVES.

Once a year, sometimes more frequently, the Director of the Budget directs his statisticians to prepare a statement showing how much has been saved by discounting the bills against the Government. But there is one class of saving that is not included in such a statement.

The immediate case in point is that of Lieut. John Howard Smith, formerly in the field artillery of the American expeditionary forces. Lieut. Smith was taken prisoner by the Germans in October, 1918. At the time of his capture he had personal effects, in the form of clothing, shoes, watch, cigarette case and other items coveted by his captors. He also had $185 in American money in his pockets. He was relieved of all his belongings, and when he returned to the United States he put in his claim for reimbursement. The value of his personal belongings, exclusive of the money, was determined to be $204, and that sum was paid to him.

But the accounting office decided that under the law as it stood at the time he could not recover for the money taken by the enemy. However, in 1921, Congress so amended the law as to provide for reimbursement for the loss of money. Lieut. Smith, in accepting the original settlement, stipulated that by such acceptance he did not forfeit his rights to reimbursement for the loss of his funds should the law be amended so as to authorize payment. His claim was, therefore, pending at the time the law was amended, and any honest business man would have taken prompt steps to settle the obligation, or if delayed in making settlement, would have been willing to pay interest on the deferred payment.

Congress enacted the law on March 4, 1921. The payment was, therefore, due from that date. But six years and six months elapsed before Comptroller General McCarl authorized Maj. Comeys, chief of finance of the army, to pay Lieut. Smith $185—without interest. Interest at the rate of 6 per cent for six and a half years on $185 is $72.15. The Director of the Budget should include among the recorded savings $72.15, to which Lieut. Smith would be entitled from an unofficial creditor, but which he never will receive from Uncle Sam.

A VERY USEFUL "LIBRARY."

There has been established in the Department of Justice, in the division of identification, a unique "library." It is devoted to the recording of the fingerprints of criminals, or suspects, who have been apprehended in all sections of the country. When an individual is arrested on a felony charge his fingerprints are forwarded to this division and at once examined. If corresponding prints are found in the "library" the official who sent in the latest record is notified and the name attached is sent to him. By this method it has been possible to identify many escaped convicts.

During the last week the division received fingerprints from Birmingham, Ala. They were the marks of one W. V. Hill, arrested in the Alabama city charged with holding up and attempting to rob a citizen. The prints enabled the identification division to identify him as a prisoner who had escaped from the State prison at Tallahassee, Fla. The Florida authorities were notified to go and get their man.

Joe Ramirez was arrested in Los Angeles and his fingerprints reached Washington a few days later, when it was found that Joe was wanted in the State prison at Huntsville, Tex., from which institution he was "absent without leave."

Charles Fillmore was arrested in Salt Lake City, and within a brief period the identification division discovered, through the examination of the prints of his digits, that his real name is Charles Price and that the sheriff at Modesto, Calif., has a warrant for his arrest on a charge of bank robbery. The sheriff of Kingston, N. Y., having made fingerprints of a prisoner who had given his name as John Duffy, sent on to Washington to ascertain whether John had not made a mistake in his name. Sure enough the prints belong to John Blaszk, who is wanted in Newark, N. J., where the authorities desire to ascertain whether he is guilty of having killed a man in September of last year. Duffy goes back to Newark as Blaszk.

It is strange how individuals forget their identity. Every one should be fingerprinted, and when that is done all over the world, and the records filed at central points, it will be possible to identify victims of amnesia as fast as they forget their names.

During the last week the Department of Justice was instrumental in disposing of fourteen cases of fugitives from justice. There were eight apprehensions, one surrender, one suicide, three indictments nolle prossed, and in one case the grand jury failed to indict. And the "library" in the identification division should be credited with all of them.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Pipe the Pipe.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the ice factory accident reported in The Post of the 27th inst., it is stated that several thousand persons "were affected by the heavy fall of ammonia fumes which hung over the neighborhood after escaping from a bursted pipe in the Home Ice Co. plant."

Some of your recent critics who broadcasted you may now wield a grammatical big stick in endeavor to impose their etymological views.

E. I. SHOPE.

District Orphans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is true, as your correspondent said a few days ago, that we who dwell in the District of Columbia are political orphans, but we "have feelings" and do not like our orphanhood thrown in our faces all the time. All orphans have a guardian. Our political guardian resides in that great white mansion, just repaired at a cost of $250,000. We have schoolhouses, but we have no voice as to how the schools shall be conducted, who shall teach or what they shall teach. Our guardian attends to all that. He appoints the judges; the judges appoint the school board; the school board appoints the superintendent; and, in combination with him, appoints the teachers, who are not having a k-k-in. We pay the salaries.

The guardian appoints Commissioners to rule the District, the Commissioners employ the police to guard us, the firemen to protect our property and ride around in automobiles we pay for, and then comes our gracious, our high privilege—a visit to the office of the tax collector.

As to who shall sit in the White House and act as guardian we have no more voice than "Indians not taxed." It is a great thing to be a political orphan. Political orphans escape all the caressing of the officeholder, and are not required to smoke campaign cigars.

ANOTHER ORPHAN.

Religion and Evolution.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The world will never be without a religion, but the religion of the future must be founded upon scientific facts. It must be placed beyond the shadow of a doubt; it must convince the most advanced minds; it must be demonstrably true, like a proposition of Euclid.

I do not write this as an unbeliever. My reason compels me to be a Christian. I believe in the logical unanswerable and convincing philosophy of Christ. I further believe that there is a supreme God, and that his existence can be proved from scientific facts, and, especially, from the teachings of evolution.

But, what do we know of the nature of God? We should study the universe and its laws; we should study nature and its methods if we wish to learn something about the Creator of all things. Most of us derive our conception of God from the Old Testament—a collection of Oriental religious writings (many of them supremely beautiful and poetical) but which, naturally, conceived of God as of an Asiatic ruler, who must be approached "in fear and trembling," with carefully prepared flatteries, in prose and in verse, and with humble bowings and genuflections of the body. We kneel before him in the dust, and beg for mercy, crying: "Have mercy upon us, miserable sinners." Such an attitude, toward the Designer of the universe, is sycophantic, cowardly and ridiculous. We are not "miserable sinners." In a certain sense, we are demigods. We believe that "God is a spirit," and, in that respect, we may claim a brotherhood and alliance with the Creator and Sustainer of the universe, for we most undoubtedly, do possess spirits, even

Cause of Intolerance

By ROBERT QUILEN

THERE is not on the earth a great nation that does not abuse its power and treat small nations unfairly. There never has been. Unless human nature changes, there never will be.

And yet the people of each great nation delight at times to scold other nations whose "imperialism" makes them brutal. They scold with a clear conscience, feeling virtuously superior, because they are constitutionally incapable of seeing their own faults.

As with nations, so with individuals. I know two friends, periodical drinkers, who are sincerely shocked by one another's asininity. They do not drink together, and they happen not to get drunk at the same time. When one is enjoying a period of conscious virtue and discovers that the other is drinking, he feels in duty bound to plead with his erring friend to mend his ways. But within a month he will be drinking, and then it will be his turn to listen to a moral lecture.

This is not a unique case. In a long and rather observant life I have known many friends, possessing similar weaknesses, who made sincere and periodical efforts to reform one another.

What a queer animal is man! And what a nuisance his queerness is! If Americans, more than other people, delight in efforts to reform one another, it is because they are more vain than other people and vanity blinds them and makes them unable to see how ridiculously inconsistent they are.

The other fellow's faults annoy you, of course. You feel the superior's urge to berate him. But wait. Your faults, though different, are equally annoying. Because he hasn't them, he also feels superior—and if he doesn't berate you, it is because his manners are superior.

Reform, like charity, should begin at home. When you have conquered every fault of your own, then you may throw the first stone without seeming an ass.

supposing that those spirits may be destined to perish with our bodies—a fact which has never been proved. In the meantime, we think, we reason, we create, we advance rapidly toward some unknown and wonderful goal.

BERTRAND SHADWELL.

Bad Effects of the Primary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It will be well if both political parties give heed to the lesson taught by the situation in Indianapolis. The mayor of that city has been found guilty by a jury of his fellow citizens of having accepted a bribe in advance of his election to cover appointments to responsible offices in the city government. Of course, he may appeal to a higher court, and thus delay for a time the execution of the sentence against him; but the stain is there. It is not alone a stain upon his individual reputation; but is a stain on the good name of his city, his State and his party. The governor of the State is also under indictment for violating the law in securing his nomination and election.

Officeholders should be like Caesar's wife—above suspicion—if we are to maintain our institutions. Political parties can not be too careful in making selections of candidates for office. As Mr. Jefferson said, the first question should be, "Is he honest?" Capability without honesty will not do. It matters not how well a man is qualified, mentally and by experience; if he is not honest in the strictest sense of that word he should not be trusted with office. There is, or ought to be, such a thing as moral honesty as well as financial honesty, and it is moral honesty that is now a question.

The experience of the last ten years proves that nominations by primary elections have failed to give the people as high-class candidates as did the old convention system. A few men chosen for the purpose will always select better men for official positions than will the people in mass. They will look to his adaptability, his mental and moral qualifications, his devotion to the law. A political party to retain the confidence of the people must make the best possible selection of candidates; but under the primary system party is forgotten, and generally it is the man who can and does spend the most money who secures the nomination.

Honesty and qualifications are not regarded.

Office holding in every branch of the Government service has vastly deteriorated under the primary system. At primary elections the doors are wide open to party frauds. Democrats vote at Republican primaries, Republicans vote at Democratic primaries. Thus the purchasable vote in too many instances decides the result. "Getting close to the people" has failed to give the country better men in office.

MACHINE CIVILIZATION.

The maladjusted and the sentimental, in expressing their discontent with contemporary civilization, often sigh for the good old pastoral days when there were no machines to make life complicated and man was not a slave to cogs and levers.

It makes a very pretty picture provided you leave out the ugly and painful details, such as poverty, long hours of work, exhausting labor, discomfort and famine. A machine civilization may have its defects, but after all it has some advantages, says the Kansas City Post.

For instance, as Dr. Clarence Reidenbach, pastor of the Westminster Congregational Church, said yesterday in a sermon, the modern machine has done more to bring intellectual and physical freedom to mankind than any other development of civilization. In the United States, the most highly mechanized country in the world, the machine has abolished the awful kind of poverty which 200 years ago was considered natural and unavoidable. And it has produced a general level of comfort which at the time the United States was founded was considered impossible.

Dr. Reidenbach pointed out that Italy and China are in dire poverty because they have no machines, comparatively speaking, and they will remain poor until they become industrialized. Only mass production will save their workmen from long hours of grinding daily labor.

The machine gives man freedom and leisure. He may not make the best use of that leisure. He may use that machine in world wars. But that is not the fault of the machine. The machine is there, ready to be turned to many uses, but what those uses will be depends upon man.

The Danish Situation.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The Danish Sobriety Commission, appointed by the government, has reported against any form of prohibition for Denmark. But, of course, the drys can point to the well-known fact that there's something rotten in the state of Denmark.

Out in Ohio.

Ohio State Journal: Another slightly depressing fact is that when an Ohio public servant betrays the slightest inclination toward independent thinking and moral courage he is regarded by a very large element of our enlightened population as a dangerous man and probably one who favors a saloon on every corner.

Sign of Progress.

Brooklyn Citizen: It is a sign of progress when a man is willing to learn from another. The same thing may be said of nations. Canada is not unwilling to learn a lesson from the experiences of her big neighbor. The Canadian government, it is stated, is contemplating the establishment of a carrier pigeon service similar to that of the American Army. The deputy minister of defense, at Ottawa, has written to the War Department at Washington requesting information. The Army maintains and operates seventeen pigeon lofts.

Times Change.

Baltimore Sun: Comments verging on the acrimonious are to the effect that boxing is not what it used to be. Gate receipts and prowess, say the bitter ones, have changed in inverse proportion. This may be only talk, but a statement regarding the Tunney-Dempsey finances does disclose a new and key influence, for the collector of internal revenue at Chicago reports that the admissions tax receipts for the fight amounted to $242,065.71, and the collector is Mabel G. Reinecke.

The Magruder Incident.

New York Evening World: Senator Borah wishes that there were Admiral Magruder in every department of the Government to expose the weaknesses, failures and extravagances. So say we all, provided the exposure comes in the proper way. Congress may summon any of these Magruders for information; and they may make their protests to their superior officers; but it is questionable whether subordinates in office should, without the foreknowledge of their chiefs, rush into the public prints. There is a wrong way to do a good thing.

MODERN WASHINGTON

When the Congressional Limited Stops at Washington

PRESIDENT, Diplomats, Ambassadors, Secretaries, Senators, Congressmen, Doctors, Lawyers, Merchants, Indian Chiefs—a cosmopolitan influx of people from all parts of the world, some happy in the knowledge that they are back home, while others have come to view the grandeur of the Capital City.

As they pass through our Union Station, the literal gateway to Washington—how realize its beauty and grandeur. Across its broad front spread nineteen arched entrances—the three tall central arches make one large triumphal arch. The building is of huge size. Its concourse is 760 feet long. It is said to be the largest space in the world under one roof. Fifty thousands people could stand within this concourse.

As one of Washington's representative institutions we are proud to welcome the thousands of people who daily enter through the arches of this great station.

We invite them—and you—this year to come to our Anniversary Sale—a great event, prophetic of the future, animated with the spirit of modern Washington—and our own.

A new
STEINWAY
THE INSTRUMENT OF THE IMMORTALS

... a smaller instrument at a lower price

MANY people who want a fine piano have insufficient space in their homes to accommodate a regular-sized instrument. For these people the Steinway Ebonized Baby Grand is specially designed and constructed.

The Ebonized Baby Grand is only 5 feet 7 inches long, yet it has the wonderful, singing tone to be expected in a Steinway. Its trim beauty adds to any interior. And it lasts a lifetime!

This smaller Steinway, at a lower price, is ideally suited to the home of cultivated taste and limited size. The terms are surprisingly convenient—it is not difficult to own one. Come in and let us show it to you—today!

Youths' well-tailored Suits, with two pairs long trousers or one pair long trousers and one pair of golf knickers. Sizes 15 to 20.

Boys' Two-Golf-Knicker 4-piece Suits, distinctively British in fabric and design. Sizes 8 to 17 years.

Boys' Suits with the English "Shorts," so largely worn by well-dressed boys of the continent and tailored from the exclusive British Isle fabrics. Sizes 4 to 10.

"Rowe of Gosport" Clothes

Away back in the early "seventies" the House of Rowe made sailor clothes for officers and men of the Royal English Navy—and out of that specialized business grew the Rowe Sailor Suit. Distinguished people began to dress their children in Rowe Juvenile Sailor Suits—authentic reproduction of the British Naval Uniform, historically correct in every detail, until now you will find the name of "Rowe" upon the clothes of children of the higher social class.

The Famous Rowe Sailor Togs for Boys and Girls include:

Pretzeleers are pantry pirates

Bong! Bong! And ten more bongs. The witching hour, by gum. Whist!

Here we see an eating likeness of a couple of bold pretzeleers out for a little pantry piracy before they go to bed. This gives Father a chance to take a little more nourishment, and also to bite out his next morning's breakfast order:

Which, as any good pretzeleer knows, stands for ham and eggs.

Night biting isn't at all unusual in the homes of those who pretzel. O-So-Guds are so tasty and so easy to digest that they are a favorite midnight lunch.

No wonder. These pretzels, baked by Uneeda Bakers, are brittle, and crispy, and crunchy, and salty. They're just as good between meals as they are with soup, or salad, or sardines, or cheese, or with iced drinks.

Children love them, and rightly too. They are good for children.

O-SO-GUD PRETZELS

Buy them by the pound. There's a lot of goodness tied up in each and every one.

Terrace, at Newport, and have gone to New York.

Miss Thalia Fortescue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Roland Fortescue, of Bayport, N. Y., whose engagement to Ensign Thomas Massie, U. S. N., son of Mrs. William Massie and the late Mr. Massie, of Winchester, Ky., was announced at a luncheon given on September 18 by Miss Fortescue's parents at their country home, has completed arrangements for her marriage on November 25.

The ceremony will take place at the home of Miss Fortescue's grandmother, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, here. Dean E. C. Brattenahl, of the Washington Cathedral, will officiate, and a reception will follow the wedding. Miss Rion Fortescue will be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Jean Allee and Miss Dorothy Allee, of Ridgefield, Conn.; Miss Sylvia Selfert, of Larchmont, N. Y.; Miss Elizabeth Brattenahl, of Washington; Miss Nathalie Walcott, of Sayville, N. Y.; and Miss Dorothy Massie, sister of the bridegroom, of Winchester, Ky. Mr. Willem van Doorn, of Montclair, N. J., will be best man.

Ordered Here for Duty.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. J. H. Brown, who will come to Washington for station on October 15, are at the Wardman Park Hotel for several days while looking for a permanent home.

Lieut. and Mrs. Charles William Steinmetz entertained a party of fourteen at dinner and dancing at the Congressional Country Club on Saturday evening in honor of Capt. and Mrs. A. W. Brock, Jr., who will go to their new station on October 1. Among those present were: Maj. and Mrs. R. P. Cousins, Capt. and Mrs. C. F. Wheeler, Lieut. and Mrs. Harry Dinger, Lieut. and Mrs. J. L. Stromme, Maj. L. W. McIntosh, Maj. T. J. Smith, Lieut. J. L. Upston and Lieut. J. M. McDonnell.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Thompson, who passed the summer at their country place in Piedmont, Ohio, have returned for the winter and have reopened their apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel. Representative Loring A. Black, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haas, of San Francisco, also are at the Wardman Park.

Mr. Thomas A. Morgan, of New York, entertained in the Carlton Hotel Tuesday evening. His guests were Maj. and Mrs. Richard Park, Maj. and Mrs. William A. Johnson, Maj. and Mrs. Thomas B. Larkin.

Mrs. John O. Nicholson has given up her apartment at the Dresden for October and is at the Highlands.

Guests Over Week-End.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ellery Crosby, the latter formerly Miss Daisy Gordon Stewart, have returned to their home, Stony Hill, at Windsor, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. Crosby motored there and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hawkins over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Guthrie, of New Zealand, are also guests at the Powhatan.

Mrs. Theodore F. Forbes has returned to her home after passing the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Lee Johnson at Newport.

Mrs. Woodward Blapham has returned to her apartment at 917 Eighteenth street after passing the summer at Williamstown, Mass.

Mrs. William L. Radcliff entertained in the Willard yesterday at luncheon.

Lieut. J. E. Whelchel, U. S. N., and Mrs. Whelchel have taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel for a month, after which time they will take a house. Lieut. Whelchel, who is on the U. S. S. Florida, is at present on leave.

Mrs. Hector McNeal and her young daughter, Miss Celeste McNeal, of Hickory Hill Farm, Devon, Pa., are at the Mayflower.

Miss Laura Richardson and Miss Virginia Richardson have been joined at the Powhatan by their father, Mr. Forrest Richardson, of Omaha.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry C. Macatee are passing a few days in Philadelphia, having accompanied their daughter, Miss Gertrude Paxton Macatee, who is entering the freshman class at Bryn Mawr College. Miss Mary Paxton Macatee has recently resumed her studies at Smith College, Northampton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Buckley, of London, Eng., are at the Willard.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Pinkham, of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Faircloth, of Tampa, Fla., and Mr. C. M. Kittle, of Chicago, are also at the Willard.

Guests at the Carlton.

Mrs. Emory W. Clark, of Detroit, and Mrs. James L. Lambert, Jr., of Henderson, Ky., are at the Carlton for several days. Mr. Emory W. Clark, who is on a hunting trip in Canada, will join Mrs. Clark in Detroit in about two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Cooke, of Lynchburg, Va., are also at the Carlton.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Berner, of New York, arrived yesterday at the Willard, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gallagher, of Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott Lovett, of Woodford, Locust Valley, N. Y., arrived in Washington Tuesday and will be at the Mayflower for several days.

The marriage of Miss Maria Montejó Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander Davidson, and granddaughter of Gen. Paul Octave Hebert, former governor of Louisiana, to Mr. Edward Scott Tylor, son of Mrs. J. Edward Tylor, was solemnized last evening at 8 o'clock in St. John's Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase, Md. The Rev. Henry Teller Cooke performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with palms, ferns and dahlias. Preceding the bridal procession, Miss Henriette LeMenege sang "I Love You Truly" and "Indian Love Call."

The bride, who entered with her brother, Lieut. James Alexander Davidson, was given in marriage by her father, who met her at the church. She wore a Vionnet gown of white satin, with simple, classic drapery in the front and a long court train. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Elizabeth Stewart was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Beatrice Clephane, Mrs. Gordon Kennedy, Miss Blanche Russell, cousin of the bridegroom and Miss Constance Adams. The maid of honor wore Lavinia's pastel-blue tulle bouffant period gown, shortened to the knees from the back, softened by a veil of three tiers of pastel-blue tulle, piped in silver. Blue velvet streamers matched the ribbon on her shoulder blades, with upturned brim in the back. She carried an arm bouquet of sweetheart roses and blue delphinium. The bridesmaids wore similar gowns in rose-pink tulle and tulle with matching hair hats. They carried arm bouquets of pink butterfly roses.

Mr. Ellwood Tylor, of Baltimore, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Lieut. Hebert Davidson, of New York, brother of the bride; Mr. Gordon Kennedy, Mr. George Babcock and Mr. Thornton Parker.

A reception immediately followed the ceremony at 1720 Lanier place for the bridal party, the members of the two families and out-of-town guests. Mrs. James Alexander Davidson, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black chiffon, handsomely beaded, and Mrs. J. Edward Tylor, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of black velvet with Duchess lace. Miss Laura Nielsen, at whose home the reception was given, wore a smart gown of beige georgette and lace. They each carried a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Davidson, of Montclair, N. J.; Mr. Alberto Agras, of Cuba; Mr. W. D. Scott, Mrs. John C. Russell, of Fredericksburg, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fisher, of Baltimore; Mrs. T. J. Claggett, Mrs. Hall Wrighton, Mr. Wilson Tylor, Mr. J. T. Miller, of Easton, Md.; Mrs. Erna Daly, of Baltimore and Mr. and Mrs. F. Miller, of Salisbury, Md.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Tylor departed for a wedding trip, the latter wearing a black satin gown and black stude coat, trimmed with platinum fox and small black felt and velvet hat. They will be at home at 1809 Belmont road after November 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kennedy entertained the wedding party at a luncheon supper, at their home, 41 Drummond avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., before the rehearsal, Tuesday evening.

The bride is a graduate of George Washington Law College, is a member of Kappa Beta Pi Legal Sorority and the League of American Pen Women. Mr. Tylor, a young attorney of this city, is also a graduate of George Washington Law College, a member of Delta Tau Delta and the Odd Fellows.

Mrs. Hoover Opens Girl Scout Sessions

New York, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, chairman of the National Girl Scout board of directors, today opened the thirteenth annual convention of the National Council of Girl Scout leaders. She described the Girl Scout movement as "an adventure in citizenship."

The directors decided to raise a memorial fund in behalf of Mrs. Juliette Low, founder of the movement, who died last January. Mrs. Arthur O. Choate, second vice president, described Mrs. Low's founding of the movement in Savannah, Ga.

PSYCHIC CONGRESS TOLD OF MEDIUM FLOATING UPON AIR

Man Able to Rise 4 Feet From the Floor, Asserts Munich Member.

TWO CURES OF PARANOIA BY EXORCISM RELATED

Addresses Also Tell of Polish Dog That Thinks and of German Devotee.

Paris, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The performance of a medium who was able not only to displace objects but also to displace himself without visible means of locomotion were cited today before the International Congress for Psychic Research by Dr. Von Schrenck Notzing, of Munich.

This medium, given the pseudonym "Karl Weber," raised himself in the air without wings 35 times during June, July and August, 1924, Dr. Notzing said. The medium's position was generally horizontal and he remained in the air at the height of 4 feet 6 inches for about 25 seconds, the doctor asserted.

On one occasion this medium was said to have floated four feet from the point where he rose into the air.

Spirits Are Invoked.

Two cures of paranoia through the invoking of the obsessing spirits were reported by Dr. Walter Franklin Prince, of Boston. He told of a Mrs. Latimer who told him that her deceased foster brother was upbraiding her. Dr. Prince said he put the woman to sleep and then addressed the departed foster brother, suggesting that the latter's own peace of mind would be enhanced if he left Mrs. Latimer alone. This treatment brought relief at once and cure eventually, the doctor said.

Dr. Prince told also of a man who came for treatment for inebriety and who showed symptoms of paranoia. The patient said he once found himself with a pencil in his hand a note which he had scribbled in front of him, which was a message from his niece who had been dead for some time. "I am going crazy," the doctor quoted the message as saying.

Dr. Prince said he followed the same treatment as in the Latimer case and the man was cured.

Other cases brought before the congress were that of a thinking dog in Poland and that of Theresa Neumann, a blind girl of Konnersreuth, Germany. Theresa recovered for sight suddenly in 1924 after a period of intense religious devotion. She was said to have lived since without drinking or eating. Every Friday she shed tears of blood while at the same time red spots appear on her sides, the palms of her hands her feet, it was related.

Mexico Pays on Debt.

Mexico City, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—It is officially announced that the Bank of Mexico has delivered to the international bankers' committee, through the Mexican financial agency in New York, $503,281.50, as the September assessment on the service of the Mexican foreign debt.

Tarantula in Chicago Sends Hundreds Fleeing

Special to The Washington Post. Chicago, Sept. 28.—Cries of "tarantula" and "run, he's poisonous," sent hundreds of pedestrians scurrying to safety today and blocked the traffic at Addison street and Ashland avenue, when a huge spider dropped out of a peddler's bunch of bananas and was recognized as the deadly wolf of the spider family.

The fruit, holding the venomous spider, had been bought from a curbside peddler by a taxicab driver, who, when he saw the giant spider, dropped his purchase to the pavement and fled, spreading the alarm.

Trade is the busy street was completely blocked for twenty minutes before several men, their hands swathed in handkerchiefs, laprobes and towels captured the tarantula and imprisoned him in a milk bottle. The spider was taken to the Sheffield avenue police station and placed in a cell.

SOVIET QUESTIONS 28 NEAR EAST WORKERS

Armenians Are Called Up for Interrogation, but Not Arrested, It Is Said.

New York, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Twenty-eight natives of Armenia, employed by the American Near East Relief in Russian Armenia, have been brought before Soviet authorities for interrogation about revolutionary movements or propaganda, since last June, Laird Archer, director of the foreign department of the organization, said today. He denied that the employees had been arrested.

"These people were among a large number of other persons called up for interrogation on suspicion of having to do with a revolutionary movement. They were not called up in connection with our work. The total of the 28 is spread over a period beginning last June. The most recent, however, probably occurred in the last two or three days. They are all local Armenians out of 1,000 employed by us. The Soviet action does not affect our work and we have not been disturbed by it. The Russian government has approved our mandate for another year."

Hunger Strike Broken By Turner, Slayer

Thomaston, Me., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Benjamin H. Turner, of Portland, who is serving a life sentence in the State prison for the murder of James A. Hallen, ended tonight a hunger strike he started five days ago. He ate a small quantity of bread and milk.

His breaking the hunger strike followed upon a conference with former Senator Frederick Hinckley, of Portland, who has become Turner's counsel. The nature of the conference was not disclosed. The prisoner appeared more cheerful after eating. He will be fed small quantities of food until he has regained his strength and then will be placed in one of the workshops, prison officials said.

BELGIUM PREPARES TO SALUTE TINY HEIR

Country Refuses to Talk of Possibility That Baby Will Be Girl.

Brussels, Belgium, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—King Albert will be the godfather of a grandson who will assume the title of Count of Hainaut should the stork which is hovering over the royal palace at Laeken, where the Crown Princess is residing, bring a boy to the royal family.

Cardinal Vanrooy, successor to the late Cardinal Mercier at Malines, will perform the religious ceremony at the christening at St. James' Chapel, adjacent to the royal palace. Burgomaster Adolphe Max and Minister of Justice Paul Hymans will attend the civil ceremony, inscribing the name of the heir to the throne on the records at Brussels City Hall.

Should a princess be born to Princess

Astrid and Crown Prince Leopold, of which possibility only whispers are heard, either Queen Elizabeth, Princess Marie Jose or Princess Clementine Napoleon Bonaparte will act as godmother. The entire kingdom is expecting an heir and not an heiress to be born. All the artillery preparations have been made for the firing of a salute of 121 guns. The birth of a princess, only calls for a 21-gun salute, while a male heir is entitled to 100 more.

Convention at Seattle Acts on Appeal of Gov. Martineau, of Arkansas.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Gov. John E. Martineau, of Arkansas, today solicited cooperation of the Investment

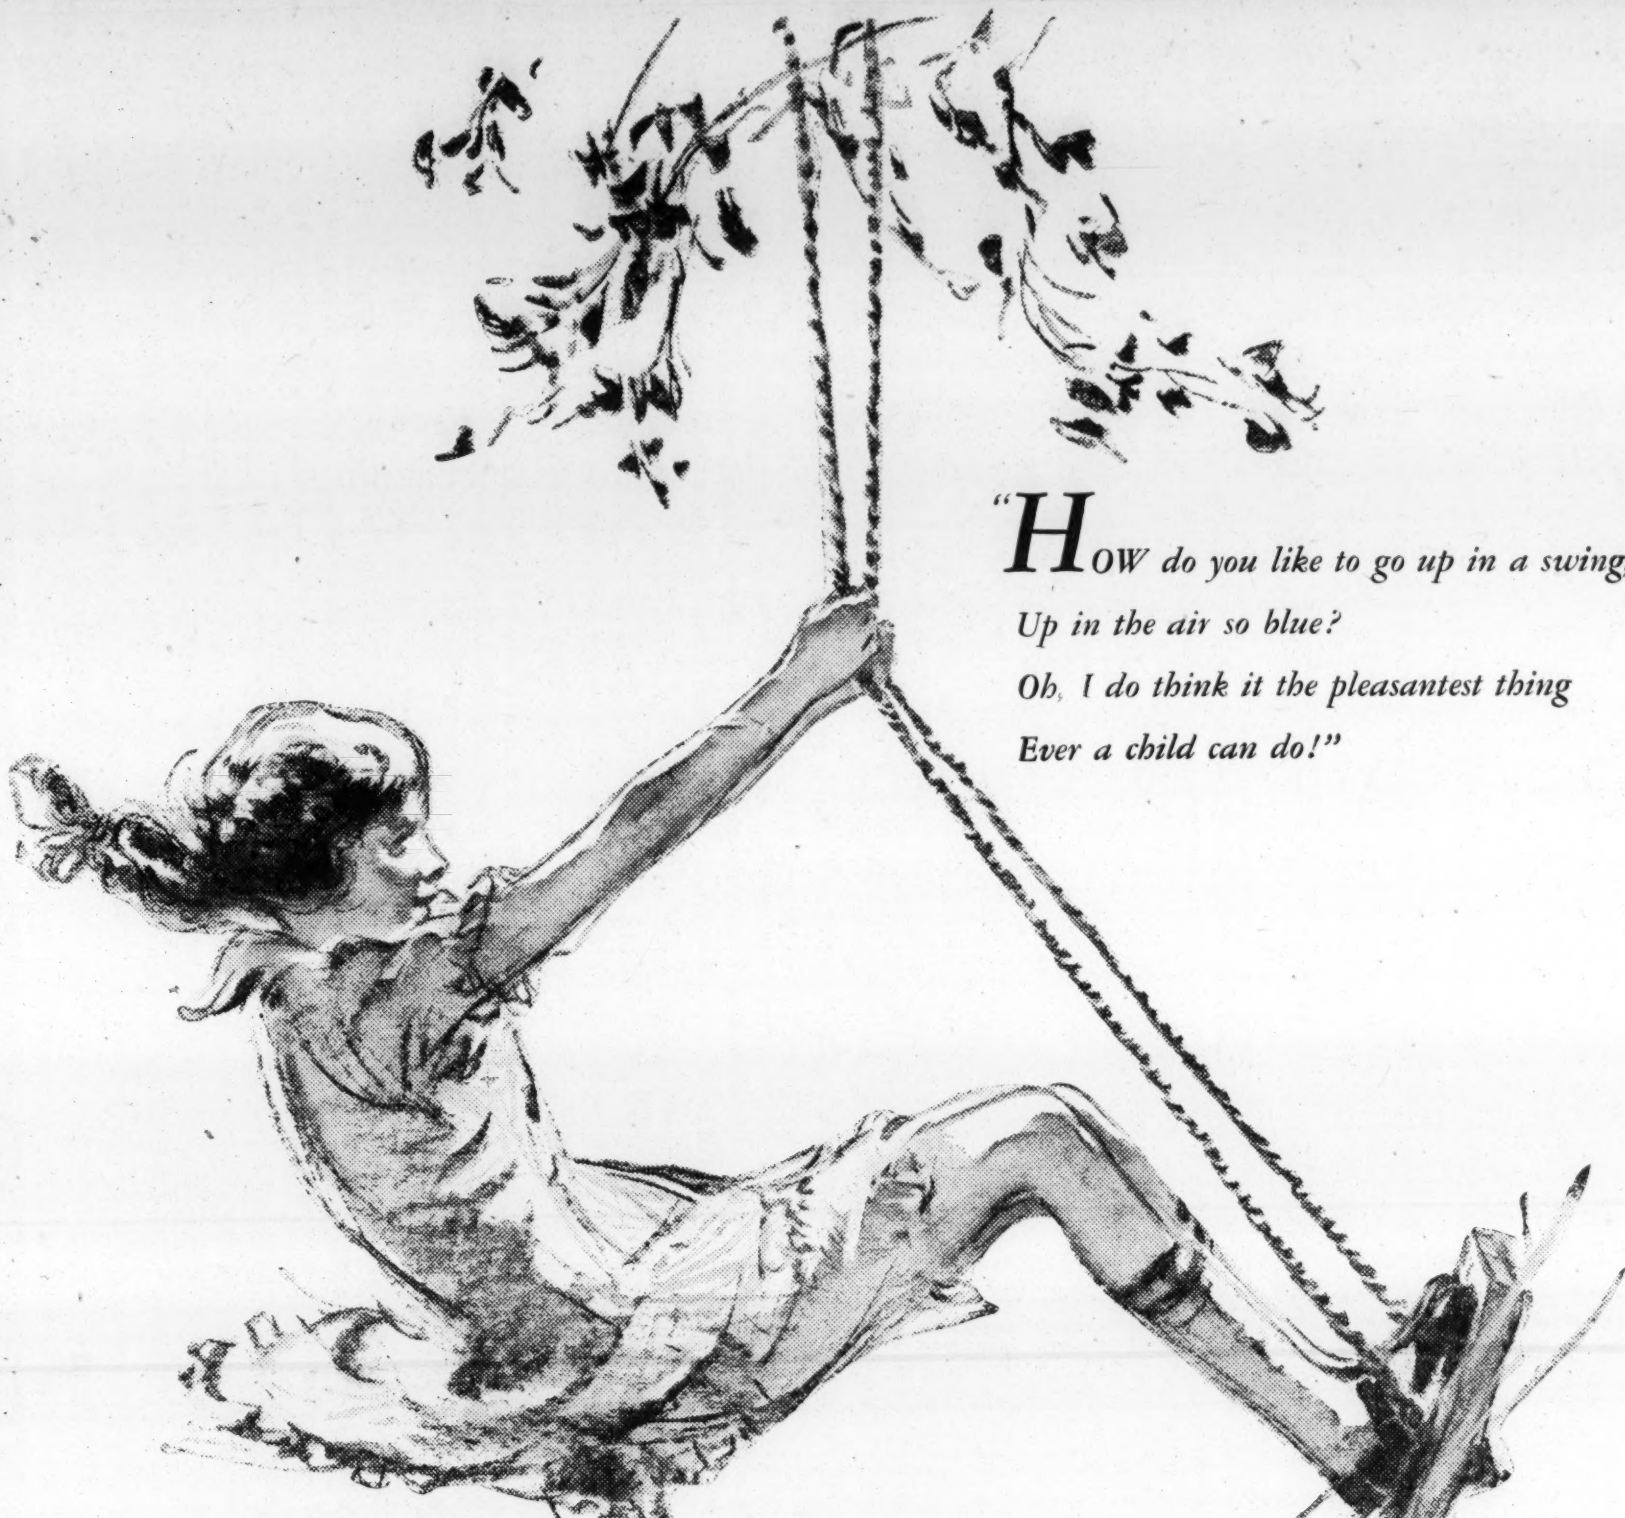

Bankers' Association of America in obtaining Federal action in the Mississippi flood control problem and the association adopted a resolution calling upon the government to "deal promptly, effectively and permanently" with the situation.

The municipal securities committee reviewed State legislation bearing on the issuance of municipal bonds and revealed that an inquiry is under way to obtain information that will guide State legislative bodies in preparation of laws to protect the investor in municipal improvement district issues of the type ordinarily known as special or benefit assessment bonds.

Charles D. Dickey, of Philadelphia, told of the growth of investment trusts and said, "the buoyant stock market of the last few years, together with the decline in interest rates, has stimulated optimism regarding the investment trusts to a point not justified."

SERVING WASHINGTON FIFTY YEARS

The First Division
Comes Home
1919

NOT for half a century had Washington seen such a military parade as the one which marched down Pennsylvania Avenue on September 17, 1919. General Pershing and the First Division—"Pershing's Own"—had come home!

The General himself had arrived a few days before, had been welcomed by all Washington, and had reported to Secretary Baker. Meanwhile the city filled with visitors, and preparations were made for a never-to-be-forgotten welcome.

On the day of the Parade all business was suspended. Soldiers filled the streets. The sky was dotted with aircraft. An observation balloon hung over East Potomac Park. General Pershing swung into Pennsylvania Avenue at the Peace Monument, and followed by thousands of the men who had served "over there" the great spectacle made its way down the Capital's most famous avenue. Citizens cheered themselves hoarse, pelted the soldiers with blossoms and crowded every inch of sidewalk, every window, and every roof along the line of march. From the Peace Monument to 15th Street the great parade wended its way through the Victory Arch, into the Court of Honor, there to be greeted by Vice President Marshall (President Wilson's representative), members of the Diplomatic Corps, members of the Supreme Court, members of the Cabinet, officers of the General Staff and other dignitaries. "Home from the wars" they came—and Washington opened her arms and took to her heart those men who, with blood and fire, had made history.

GENERAL MOTORS PLANS NO TRADE WAR ON FORD

Plenty of Room, Says Sloan, for All Grades of Cars in U. S. Markets.

WILL KEEP TO LUXURY

Special to The Washington Post.

Milford, Mich., Sept. 28.—Peace, not war, is to prevail between Henry Ford and the General Motors Corporation. The big corporation will not attempt to invade Ford's field by attempting to produce a low-priced car to compete with him.

There is plenty of room in the automobile industry for both Ford and General Motors, with Ford continuing to make a low-priced car and General Motors making a better one at a better price.

These are the inferences drawn from an extension of the olive branch by Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, in an address he delivered here today to hundreds of automobile editors of newspapers at the proving ground of the big corporation.

It seems evident that if Ford does not invade the field of slightly higher priced cars like the Chevrolet when he brings out his new model, there will be no trade battle between the two giants of the automobile industry. This will be a disappointment to many who have been predicting a rivalry amounting to a bitter conflict for control of the market for low-priced cars. Sloan announced all this flat-footedly, saying in part:

"I do not think any of us appreciate the tremendous debt we owe to Mr. Ford for not only his conception of the idea of building a car at the lowest price possible, but his sticking to it. Other people who had the idea did not stick to it—they permitted their cars to get more costly and therefore lost their position."

"If the past is any indication of the future, the new Ford car will be a car that will appeal to a great mass of people. Naturally, that car must meet present conditions, but the basic idea is likely to be the same."

"General Motors is in quite a different position. General Motors' idea is to make a car of greater luxury than the Ford—a car that properly belongs to the next higher price class. With every price car there is a definite market. Any manufacturer that will give to the public a definite number of dollars' worth of value, and do it constructively and honestly, will get a certain proportion of the market that belongs to that number of dollars. It is purely a question of giving the public honest value."

under $25,000 bail as a material witness, received friends at the little cottage in South Vineland, where she lived with her husband and their 8-year-old son. Mrs. Beach defended the missing man.

"I have every confidence in my husband," the woman today told newspapers. Mrs. Beach returned to her home only yesterday. She had been visiting a daughter in Elizabeth, Pa.

Mrs. Lillendahl maintains that her husband was shot by two negroes who forced her at the point of revolvers to pull her automobile into a little-used country road near Hammonton.

Mountain Lakes, N. J., Sept. 28 (A.P.). Resuming their investigation of the activities of Dr. A. William Lillendahl, slain recently, Atlantic and Morris County detectives said today that they had learned that Mrs. Lillendahl visited here lately with Willis Beach, now sought for further questioning in the killing. The Lillendahls lived here before moving to Vineland about a year ago.

The detectives who came here yesterday said Mrs. Lillendahl and Beach went several days here. From acquaintances of Mrs. Lillendahl they learned that the visit had caused hard feelings and altercations between Mrs. Lillendahl and her husband.

Cattle Prices Set A Post-War Record

Kansas City, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The highest prices for cattle since the World War were paid on the Kansas City market today when 41 head of steers owned by W. T. Belcher, of Carrollton, Mo., brought $15.75 a hundred pounds. The steers averaged 1,031 pounds and were sold for an average of $162.38 each.

Another lot of 20 steers sold for $13.70 a hundred pounds and a lot of mixed steers and heifers also established a new top at $15.10 a hundred pounds.

room where dad and I were, sat down on the side of the bed and talked with dad. She talked about what they would do now. She told him they would run the house from now on."

"How long did she remain?"

"I got up and went to work at 7 o'clock. She was still there when I left."

The youth was asked by the State if he recalled a conversation with Miss Atkinson about deaths in his family. He replied:

"She (meaning Miss Atkinson) had been reading old letters between dad and mother, written before they were married, and one of them told about the death of dad's father. She asked which one should die first if there was a death in our family. She then said she thought mother should go first, saying if she had another stroke she might not recover. She also said dad could make a living for us and mother could not."

In the Home Several Days.

"What did Miss Atkinson do after your mother died?" the boy was asked. "She was in the home several days after she died. She tried to get meals and to take charge of the house."

"What else did she do?"

"She bossed us children. Helen objected."

Mary Jane was Helen's twin sister. The latter was seriously ill at the time of Mary Jane's death.

Stewart Bailey told briefly about the defendant moving to a room a block away from the Bailey home when "Dad said it might not look right for her to stay after mother was dead."

The boy related that Miss Atkinson accompanied his father and mother on a trip to Colorado this summer. The Civil Service Commissioner.

President Wilson in 1920 appointed her to the United States Civil Service Commission, the first woman member of that body. She held this office until her death in 1925, at the age of 72.

As a champion of the equal rights for women, Mrs. Gardener was convinced that there is no inborn inferiority in the female sex. The circumstance that the female brain is lighter than the male called for explanation, she believed. In her book, "Sex in Brain," she showed that there was no essential difference in the general mass of brain in the sexes which could not be accounted for by the difference in the size of the body, and that, given similar conditions and opportunities for development, the female brain shows no discrepancy.

To substantiate her claim she and her friend, Mrs. Stanton, in 1897 willied their brains to Cornell University.

NO LURE IN MARRIAGE FOR EVANGELINE BOOTH

Commander Not to Be Caught,
She Says at Reception on London Visit.

PROHIBITION IS PRAISED

London, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The liquor problem in the United States will be a question of the past in another generation, Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, predicted at Central Hall, Westminster, which Salvationists jammed tonight in welcoming her to London after an absence of eight years.

"In another generation, I believe, liquor will have totally disappeared," she said, amid applause.

Miss Booth, who went to America 23 years ago from London, is visiting her brother Bramwell, commander in chief of the Salvation Army, and will spend a few weeks in the provinces prior to taking a holiday in France, and thence proceeding home to the United States.

"With the ousting of the American saloon," said Commander Booth, "ninety per cent of the drunkenness has disappeared. Of all welfare workers, none were in closer touch with those afflicted with this burning thirst than my faithful officers and people, and their uniform and irrefutable testimony clearly show that the chief source of former debaucheries is gone. The drink-sodden wretch, who formerly was the despair of the law and almost the despair of the gospel, is found only in rare instances."

Miss Booth branded as false the reports that there had been a rift in the ranks of the Salvationists because she had been ordered to give up her post and leave America and refused to do so. "I was never ordered to leave the United States, and I want Salvationists to hear the denial from my own lips," she declared.

She emphasized to the contrary that General Booth's orders always to her had been "Go out where you are, where you are doing such good work."

She told of the abundance of her affection for the United States, and added, "I shall live to reach the age of 200." Then, good-humoredly, she told of efforts still being made to persuade her to change her name through matrimony and divide her affection.

"But I can not see it," she averred, "as my whole heart is in my work entirely. I am flying too high for any such thoughts, and I don't propose to be caught at this date in life."

"You know I can't say good-by to any one, so I kissed you in the study to say good-by. I'm glad you are to have the girls."

"I'm sorry that things have come about as they have, but as I look at you squarely, I feel you were as much to blame as I. Perhaps you don't feel so but I do, but nevertheless—however it is—no matter what you do or take now you can never take from me the love I have for you and whether you want it or not you have it. For that I am not to blame and I shall not try to overcome it."

"I shall continue work here as long as I am able and will go on as though you were not even in this town, but all the time I'll be loving you just the same and in my heart and mind I'll be doing the things for you I'd love to but that which you are denying me."

"Whatever was done was done on an impulse without realization. If you meant what you said, when you said once to me after I had said to you 'I love you,' that the feeling was mutual, you will be glad to know I shall endeavor to try to do as you'd want me to."

"You are taking the girls away from me by asking me to leave your home but I can do anything for you. I will not try to see you or bother you in any way. You will know where I am and when you want me for anything you can reach me. I kissed your pillow where you will sleep tonight and truly hope you will sleep."

Frigidaire saves average of $105<sup>36</sup> a year over ice refrigeration!

Amazing facts reported by FRIGIDAIRE users.

Low cost of operation an achievement of FRIGIDAIRE engineering

MANY still regard electric refrigeration as expensive. To prove that this is not true of Frigidaire, we sought the opinion of some 10,000 users.

Saves $105.36 per year

The answers were startling. They indicated savings even greater than we anticipated. According to carefully tabulated records, an average of $105.36 per year—over and above all operating costs! These amazing economies are due to two things: (1) No ice bills. (2) No food waste. But remember—there are other economies that cannot be figured in dollars and cents. Cleanliness, for example. Convenience. Health protection. Ice freezing and dessert making service. Frigidaire gives them all to you. Who can now doubt that Frigidaire saves money far beyond the cost?

A scientific achievement

Frigidaire represents years of research and development on the part of Frigidaire Engineers, and the Research Department of General Motors—the largest organization of electrical, chemical and mechanical engineers in the world. In Frigidaire, modern science has incorporated elements that the exterior of the cabinet can't reveal.

Huge production—lowest prices

Yet, you pay no premium for Frigidaire's super-quality. In fact, by every standard of measurement, Frigidaire actually costs less than any other electric refrigerator on the market today! This is due to General Motors purchasing power and tremendous output that is greater than that of all other electric refrigerators combined!

Take down your ice card forever

No more ice to buy. No more spoiled foods that swell meat and grocery bills. No more border-line foods that are a constant menace to health. Replace old refrigerating methods with Frigidaire that keeps foods fresh, pure and wholesome and that safeguards the health of all the family—every day in the year.

New, low prices

To the wealth of evidence in favor of Frigidaire, add the new, low prices—the lowest in Frigidaire history. A complete model with Duco-finished enamel-lined steel cabinet—all ready to attach and operate from any convenient electric outlet—for the amazing factory price of only $180!

Few Dollars Puts It In Your Home

What other household appliance pays such big returns for so small an investment? Frigidaire is in use every hour—each day in the year. It safeguards your food and your health. The whole family enjoys it. And it pays for itself with the money it saves, as proved by the signed reports of users. Visit our display room and see the new models. A small deposit puts one in your home. Then pay a little each month under liberal General Motors terms. Come in today. Or write or phone for an interesting illustrated booklet—now sent free.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

The Homemaker

OUR outlook today for the remainder of the week is that we have to provide for our dinner tonight, a supper on Saturday night and a fish dinner tomorrow night. There are two manners in which we may plan these three evenings, one by preparing a meal that will have "some left over" and so care for Saturday, provided fish is purchased for tomorrow, and the other by using a one-meal dish tonight and still another of the same sort Saturday. I rather like the idea of the left-over arrangement, however, as it lessens labor on Saturday, both in preparing food and in the shopping endeavor.

Chicken on a Thursday need not seem an extravagance, and we shall plan chicken for tonight. That is to say, it shall be fowl, less expensive than the younger variety from the hen world, and perfect for your purpose. From this meat we shall have chicken soup with rice for dinner this evening, then chicken with a sauce over it for the main dish, and on Saturday chicken cutlets—which are delicious and will dispose of the fowl before the dawn of Sunday. When buying, select a small fowl, as small as can be had, unless, of course, there are to be guests or the family is large. A small fowl, plus the other items of the menu, will amply provide for our two meals.

Menu.

Chicken Soup with Rice.
Toasted Crackers. Plum Jelly.
Chicken in Cream Sauce.
Summer Squash.
Riced Potatoes.
Hot Biscuits.
Heart of Lettuce Salad with Roquefort Cheese Dressing.
Coffee.

The menu may seem rather a heavy one, and the soup may be omitted, if desired. It is suggested because it is available. The sauce to be served with the chicken is made from a part of the liquor in which the meat is cooked, and part milk, the latter to be added in less than equal quantity.

Chicken in Cream Sauce.
Cook a fowl in salted water to which has been added an onion, a few oyster celery stalks, a bay leaf and four or five peppercorns. Simmer the meat slowly, just at the boiling point. When thoroughly tender remove to a platter, clear of all skin and separate the meat from the bones, keeping the meat in as large pieces as possible. Return the bones and skin to the liquor in which the chicken was cooked and let the liquid cook down somewhat. When ready to serve, place the chicken, which has been kept warm, on a hot platter and surround with a thickened sauce of chicken stock and milk seasoned to taste. Garnish with paprika and bits of parsley. Not all of the chicken should be placed on the platter, but the smaller pieces and scraps set aside for the cutlets Saturday night.

Roquefort Cheese Dressing.
Mash a small amount of roquefort cheese with a coarse-tined fork and add to it about three tablespoonsful of mayonnaise dressing. Add a half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, and then add well-seasoned French dressing to the materials until the mixture is more than double in quantity. It will thicken slightly. Serve on heart of lettuce.

Hot Baking-Powder Biscuit.
To each cupful of sifted flour used add two rounded teaspoonfuls of shortening (should be vegetable fat rather than animal fat), a third teaspoonful of granulated sugar, a pinch of salt and two rounded teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Work these ingredients together with the tips of the fingers until well blended. Add a little at a time, sufficient sweet milk to make a soft dough that can be turned into a floured board and patted into flat shape before cutting out. Cut out with a small biscuit cutter and bake in an ungreased pan in a quick oven for twelve minutes or until sufficiently brown.

How Many Can You Answer?

Each question counts ten. If you answer eight correctly, your intelligence rating is 80 per cent. Actual tests reveal that eight out of ten correct is college standard; six out of ten correct is high school standard; four out of ten correct is grammar school standard. Less than four correct is uneducated standard.

1. On what lake is Chicago?
2. What is the singular of dice?

The Bedroom Cleverly Disguised

HOUSE AND GARDEN

WHERE an alcove off the living room must be pressed into service as sleeping quarters by night, the only satisfactory manner of decoration is to disguise the true purpose of the alcove, treating the two sections as one room. If the furniture is carefully chosen, the alcove space can be made to appear part of the living room, while retaining all the various features necessary to bedroom comfort.

This has been successfully accomplished in the alcove sketched above.

Here the day bed, the small commode and the interesting French desk at the left are all living room pieces; yet the bed is as comfortable as one of regulation design, the drawers of the commode are the right size for underwear, stockings, gloves et cetera, and the secretary desk has solid doors behind which hats and shoes may be stored.

The addition of a built-in wardrobe closet and a small dressing table, the mirror of which may be folded down to form a flat surface, makes of such an alcove a completely equipped bedroom.

MODISH MITZI

Mitzi has just been redecorating her room and one of the important things about a room is the placing of the mirrors, of course. This one is just right for Polly to see her blouse of gray georgette with its plastron of velvet brocade. It's not a long blouse—it fits tightly about Polly's hips.

Eleanor, at another mirror across the room, is able to survey with great content her own red crepe blouse which has a double bolero line and three trim tabs to show what may be done with the jabot idea in tailored effects. This blouse is slightly longer—and so is the mirror. Mitzi plans all!

Every Mirror Has Its Use

Adelaide grabbed a longer mirror for herself. Adelaide's blouse is almost a tunic—it's a metallic cloth trimmed with velvet bands and its high collar and severe outlines only accent the loveliness of the materials. The tunic silhouette is one of the fashionable features of the season.

Then, of course, there's a full length mirror on the door. It reflects very nicely Mitzi's frock which is certainly one of the new tunic dresses we just mentioned. She is anxious to know—Do they think she has too many mirrors in the room? And with one voice they all answer: "One!"

Tomorrow—Costume Jewelry.

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

DEAR Viola Paris: I am one who who did not bob my hair, and now have a desire to do so, but fear it is rather late to think about it. I certainly wouldn't like to have it cut and be compelled by fashion to let it grow in a short time. Kindly let me have your opinion as to bobbing at this late date. I am a young woman with two children, and haven't terribly much time to spend in beauty parlors.

MRS. S. W.

Answer—I am delighted to have an opportunity to reply to this question. I know that many other long-haired ones are asking it, also. The answer, briefly, is no—it is not too late to bob. Nor will it be too late next month or next winter or next spring. I don't want to be a prophet, but I must say that, so far as I can see, short hair is a staple fashion. It is

For Traveling

VOGUE 53157

It is never an extravagance or a mistake to invest in a tailored dress. More often than not it is a real necessity. For the business woman it is indispensable, and to the woman whose life follows a less definite course it is no less necessary.

The frock sketched above is the embodiment of the essence of chic. Its trim straight lines are extremely flattering to the figure. This coat dress is made of beige rep and there are inserted sections at both side fronts. These sections become pleats below the waist. The two bodice cover the question of the exact location of the waistline pretty thoroughly. One belt buttons in front and the other buttons neatly in the center of the back. The white pique vest is a neat fresh touch on this strikingly well-groomed dress.

The hat is felt, untrimmed save for the subtle draping of the crown. It is of a concrete substance of wavy and means to be pursued, but no one who is sympathetic toward dogs can go far wrong by applying thoroughgoing common sense to the situations as they arise.

On Guiding Dogs

By ROBERT S. LEMMON.

IN the course of your association with a new dog, you will soon discover individual tendencies, some of them praiseworthy and others not so desirable. He will exhibit clearly a great many emotions that have absolute parallels in mankind—such feelings as fear, resentment, shame, pleasure, anger, impulsiveness, cool-headedness and so on. It rests with you to select and cultivate the tendencies you desire, and discourage those which are likely to prove unpleasant. By no means is it wise to let development proceed without supervision, so many dog owners are in the habit of doing.

It may seem a stretch of the imagination to say that one of the surest ways of directing the establishment of proper demeanor in a dog is to set him a good example, but the statement is literally true. Even a pup of 3 or 4 months' age is surprisingly imitative, and he becomes more so as he grows older. Time after time, if you pay him the attention that you should, he will see him take his cue from your own attitude—excitement if you are agitated, calmness when you show poise, confidence when he senses that quality in your behavior.

This imitative characteristic is not, of course, to be relied upon as sufficient for all occasions; you will have to make many definite and direct efforts to guide the tendencies of even the best dog. If you notice the beginnings of traits that you do not want, stamp them out firmly from the very start. Should other desired ones need encouragement, do everything in your power to foster them. Since every case is different, it is impossible to set down concrete statements of ways and means to be pursued, but no one who is sympathetic toward dogs can go far wrong by applying thoroughgoing common sense to the situations as they arise.

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

KEEPING FIT

I HAVE been much interested lately to see how wonderfully well it suits the middle-aged, if there are any, to keep fit. Exercise, both mental and bodily (but I'm speaking particularly of bodily exercise), has a marvelous effect. When I was off on my vacation this year I watched a tennis match between two older women (one about 50) and two younger ones. Of the younger women, one was the daughter of the woman of 50. She (the mother) played as vigorously and looked cooler and in better condition than any of the other players. I know she is an indefatigable rider, and I saw her go in swimming every day. I also noticed the admirable physical condition of another by no means young woman, who won a very hardy contested match in a semi-professional game, and I almost made up my mind that a leisure largely devoted to sports came nearer creating the same mind in the healthy body than anything else would.

None of us should let ourselves grow soft and saggy if we can help it. I believe that exercise and a good circulation would keep any one happy and wise, provided, of course, the person had natural intelligence to start with. Women who late in life take up golf, or any other out-of-doors sport, have my hearty approval. They need not ape the extravagances in costume of the younger sporting set, but they can be neat, smart, workmanlike and keenly interested. Perhaps they will prefer gardening to golf, but whatever they

On Leashing Dogs

By ROBERT S. LEMMON.

THE first time a pup feels restraint of a leash and collar he is quite likely to be distinctly upset by the experience. Never having known anything like it before, he does not understand what has hold of him, instinctively fears it, and often is swept into paroxysms of terror unless you do something to prevent them.

In the interest of humaneness and of your pup's welfare, don't let these things happen. Relax him up and let him "fight it out." When he begins to tug and jump about, trying to escape from the mysterious restraint, quiet him by word and act, reassuring him to the best of your ability and gradually getting him to realize that there's no need of his being frightened, after all. Such an attitude of reasonable kindness and encouragement should produce quick results and avoid a deal of unnecessary suffering on his part.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

The pointer for today is: KING AND TWO SMALL CARDS OF PARTNER'S SUIT IS SO MUCH MORE THAN NORMAL SUPPORT THAT WITH IT ANOTHER DECLARATION SHOULD NOT BE MADE UNLESS THE HAND IS EXCEPTIONALLY STRONG.

This week we are considering 20 hands all supposed to be held by North, South (Dealer) having bid one Heart and West (Second Hand) having passed:

Four of these hands are discussed each day.

NO. 9
A-K-Q-J-X

K-J-X-X

No. 9, North should pass. The Spade bid is tempting, but unsound when holding more than normal support in partner's Hearts and only five Spades. A game is worth more than an honor score and there is a better chance for game at Hearts than would exist if a false denial were made.

No. 10, One Spade. With six strong Spades, a denial is justified even with King and two others of partner's suit. It is an "insurance" call protecting partner should he have opened the auction with a four-card bid. It is a case in which honors can be considered.

No. 11, Pass. In spite of the temptation to bid No Trump, it would be foolhardy to risk the running of the adverse Spades.

No. 12, One No Trump. The hand promises to produce a larger score at that declaration. It has a No Trump distribution and every suit but Hearts stopped at least twice. The obvious advantage of having North the Closed Hand to be led up to, constitutes another reason for the take-out.

The four hands to be considered tomorrow are:

Narcissus in the Border

NARCISSUS—or daffodils. How often we hear the question raised as to which is the correct name! The committee on standardized names of the American Nurserymen's Association says narcissus, both for the scientific and common names. But if we turn to the old writings of horticulturists we find John Parkinson saying: "Many idle and ignorant gardeners call some of these daffodils narcissus, when, as all know that know any Latin, that narcissus is the Latin name and daffodil the English of one and the same thing; and therefore alone, without any other Epithet can not properly distinguish several things."

Whatever the name, we are ultimately concerned with the use and arrangement of these lovely flowers in the border or garden bed. Though magnificent when in bloom they are ugly at other times and can not be used where they will leave great gaps in the garden ensemble. Nor do we wish to use them always as mere edgings or in solid beds to be dug up later and replanted with annuals. We soon tire of such bold effects. Are they not most satisfying when used in groups or drifts throughout the borders, in combination with other things, or naturalized on the lawn under trees?

Since the quarantine on the importation of narcissus bulbs from Europe American growers have been very busy learning how to grow them in this country and, fortunately for us, they have had some success. We can now obtain the highest quality domestic bulbs at a little more than we used to pay for the imported ones.

It is impossible here to enumerate the many wonderful varieties available.

Garden of Noted Botanist Restored

Upsala, Sweden, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The old botanical garden of Linnaeus, the Swedish "king of flowers," who is regarded the world over as the father of modern botany, has been restored at Upsala, old university town where he taught his system of classifying plants to pupils from all countries.

The work of replanting the garden according to plans left by the master has been done by the Upsala Linnaean Society.

Memorials to Lincoln Dot U. S. and Europe

Lincoln City, Ind., Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Memorials to Abraham Lincoln have been erected in 14 States and in more than 30 cities and towns in this country, and in at least three European cities, according to a compilation made by those in charge of an Indiana memorial to the emancipator.

They have ranged in cost from $15,000 to $3,000,000. The first contribution on record for a Lincoln memorial was given by a former slave the day after the assassination.

Chicago and Washington have the largest number of monuments. Two of the most noted, by Augustus St. Gaudens, are in Chicago.

French Beauty Prize For "Good" Girl Only

Paris, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Beauty and virtue, allied in some good and handsome French girl, are to have their reward.

Virtue itself long has been recompensed in France at the annual fete of many villages and cities. A girl with goodness, moral and otherwise, is given honors in public ceremonies in some places, a marriage dowry in others.

Now a rich philanthropist whose name is withheld plans to create a prize for the girl who adds good looks to goodness.

Leopard Keeps Rail Passengers at Bay

Karlsruhe, Germany, Sept. 28 (A.P.). Many would-be passengers missed their trains at Karlsruhe rather than risk an encounter with a large leopard which took possession of the station approach and wandered into the ticket office and about the platform.

The leopard had escaped from the zoo. One of several workmen in the station yard kept the animal at bay in a corner with a shovel until keepers arrived and shoved the leopard into a cage.

They have ranged in cost from $15,000 to $3,000,000. The first contribution on record for a Lincoln memorial was given by a former slave the day after the assassination.

Chicago and Washington have the largest number of monuments. Two of the most noted, by Augustus St. Gaudens, are in Chicago.

Reigh Count Fastest At End

Crusader Shows Fine Form in Winning Delaware.

Alynette, Field, Wins From 14 Others in First Event.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAYVE DE GRACE, Sept. 28.—Happy Time, the brown colt by Pauline Time, who won the $20,000 added Eastern Shore Handicap this afternoon, setting a terrific pace from the break and drawing away into a commanding lead in the first furlong, Happy Time was never headed. He was tiring at the end and in a whirlwind finish managed to hold long enough to win by a half length from Reigh Count. The latter was a close front of Excelsior and then followed by a number of others.

It was a big field that went to the post in the Eastern Shore, only three of the seven carried leading horses. Pauline Time, Sun Belwin and Glad declined the issue. Reigh Count, on the strength of his clever effort in the Futurity, was made favorite and carried support. The Whitney pair, Crusader and The Tartar, were second choices. Bands had the mount on Crusader, and the Saturday night him many admirers. They were at the post only three minutes when Starter Milton dispatched them on their journey to a good track.

The outside horses appeared quickest to get going. Sun Belwin and The Tartar showed in front for a few strides, but they had not gone very far before Happy Time was out in front and flying. Pauline Time had a stout lead, but, despite this, he reeled off the first two furlongs in 4:13 4-5.

Going strongly and well within himself, he drew out into a three-length lead. He maintained a terrific pace around the far turn, entering the home stretch was still apparently going easily. The half mile in 4:04 4-5 was the fastest for the distance ever shown at Havre de Grace.

Entering the home stretch, Happy Time had a two-length lead over Crusader, which had the runner-up all the way. The Tartar, who was favored, Reigh Count, was far back and apparently hopelessly out of it. The colt broke slowly, and in the shuffle for positions during the first sixteenth was knocked back. When Lang took hold of him at the half-mile pole, he was next to last.

Rounding the far turn, he began to run and making the turn into the home stretch was steered to the outside and moved up stoutly. Straightened out for the final effort in the stretch, Reigh Count showed a great burst of speed and at the finish was catching the string leaders at every jump.

He was going two strides to the winner's at the end and would have won in another 10 yards. Starter Ship, a bit fractious at the barrier, broke slowly and was never in a contending position. Excelsior loomed up, anxious to make a dash for the home stretch where he skinned through the inside rail, but he hung right at the end. The stake had a gross value of $27,800. Winner's portion of which was $22,500.

Crusader, the mighty son of Man o' War, was in what was probably the softest spot he has started in in many months when he went to the post in the Delaware Handicap, the dash of a mile and a sixteenth. The horse's runners simply swamped the machines with their commissions and three extra sets of tickets were issued on him.

There were only four starters and they were sent away to a moving start. Rounding the first turn, Bostonian and Navigator rushed to the front. Bands trailed off the pace with Crusader until entering the home stretch, and when he let the big chestnut down, he dashed to the front and in the final furlong drew away into a three-length lead. Bands was looking back all of the last sixteenth.

Bostonian was second, a length in front of Navigator, which then bled away at the end. Crusader pulled up full of energy and has evidently rounded back to good form again. He is a candidate for the $20,000 added Havre de Grace cup, to be run on Saturday, and Bands will pilot him in this engagement.

Homage proved best of the field of platers that went to the post in the sixth race. He was a well-played favorite and won handsily by two lengths and a half from Immortal, which closed with a rattle at the end to get up in time to beat out the tiring Yachtman by a head.

South Breeze secured a runaway victory in the closing event when he beat Wind Pile out three lengths.

BOTH the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Yankees place a capable pair of receivers in the series and both pitchers should have little to worry them in the catching department. Smith and Gooch face Collins and Grabowski at the receiving end of the Yankee battery.

Smith will carry with him the best fielding mark of any of the catchers, but his margin is small, as Grabowski's figure of .983 trails him by but 3 points. The latter, however, has handled several more chances than Smith in approximately the same number of games. Both Pat Collins and Gooch face Smith below this pair, the former's fielding mark being but .974, 1 point over that of Gooch.

Despite the lower marks the latter pair has handled the majority of the games for the contenders, both having accepted over 300 chances. In respect to their attack, both the Yankee battery and the receiving end of the Yankee battery show a margin over the National League.

Grabowski boasts an average of .382, while Collins follows him with .372. The Pirate pair pull up in third and fourth places with .365 and .356, respectively. Gooch has registered the most two-base hits of the quartet, with Collins taking the home run honors. In respect to their attack, both the Yankee battery and the receiving end of the Yankee battery show a margin over the National League.

Despite the good qualities these players have there is one much noticed handicap, speed on the base paths. A careful survey of work on the base paths shows Earl Smith credited with one stolen base and that, incidentally, is the total credited to all four players. Both clubs also boast of good third string catchers, the Yanks presenting Benny Neugebauer, while the Pirates have Roy Spencer for reserve material.

Spencer boasts a fine batting mark of .308 along with a fielding figure of .975. The Yankee player, one of the most promising catchers in the game today, is found far down the list in both batting and fielding, but this may be attributed to the long time he was forced to stay out of the lineup.

The St. Louis Cardinals, if able to reach the series, would rely on O'Farrell, their manager, to take care of the catching duties. O'Farrell fields practically as well as Grabowski, the leading Yankee player, but has not been able to compile as good a batting mark.

Frank Snyder, veteran of many seasons back of the plate, and Schulte, a new comer to the big leagues this year, would be on hand to assist the Cardinal should he manage to squeeze them into the series during the next few days.

Aside from the hitting and fielding ability, catching means much more, especially in a group of games such as these, where every bit of strategy counts. Good throwing and ability to outguess the base runners to keep down long legs and stolen bases is a big asset, while ability to handle pitchers and to judge opposing batsmen are other important factors.

As the season's records of both the Pirate and Yankee catchers reveal that they possess these qualities and there being little to determine from the batting and fielding marks, it appears as though these two teams would enter the play-off with the catching departments a row-up.

Should it be the Cardinals that meet Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and other sluggers of the New York American team, O'Farrell would probably give the Westerners an edge in the catching department as the Card manager is a greater field general than either of the American leaguers.

Six Soccer Games Open Season Sunday
The 1927-28 soccer season will open officially next Sunday, when four games will be played in the Capital City League and two in the Washington Soccer League. Walford and Concord will meet on the Monument Grounds and Marlboro will be host to the German-Americans for the last-mentioned league's quota of games.

In the Capital City League Blich's Arcadians will play Germania at 1:45 o'clock on the Monument Grounds; Capitol Soccer Club will play Rockville at Rockville, Glen MacLennan will meet British United at Roseade Playground, and Rosedale will play the Army Medics at Walter Reed.

Referees assigned are: Louis Bullock, Monument Grounds, at 1:45; and Rosedale, at 3:30; George Youngblood, Monument Grounds, at 3:30 o'clock; Edward Kruse, Marlboro, at 3 o'clock; Dave Adamson, Walter Reed, at 3 o'clock. New applicants for referees are requested to communicate with William O. Burch, room 2, District Building.

Kermitt Smith Is Sold Into Eastern League
Special to The Washington Post.
Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 28.—Kermitt Smith, former Alexandria High School pitcher and the backbone of the hurling corps of Mickey Keilher's Chambersburg Maroons, Blue Ridge League pennant winners, has been sold to the New Haven Club of the Eastern League for $750. Keilher, who is visiting friends here, announced today.

RED POLOISTS BEAT FORT TEAM

Maj. Woodward, Capt Houghton Star in 14-9 Victory.

THE War Red polo polo captured the opening match of the low goal tournament yesterday when it defeated the Fort Humphreys squad in a one-sided but nevertheless hard fought game 14 to 9. Fort Humphreys received a four goal handicap.

Maj. Woodward and Capt. Houghton were the leading lights of the Red victory, while Maj. Thomas played brilliantly for the Humphreys team. Capt. Cox and the Humphreys goal scores with three.

Potomac Park will be the scene of the semifinals of the low goal tournament today when sixteenth and sixteenth field artillery will meet to decide which shall meet the War Whites in the final.

Both teams played spectacular games to reach the semifinals and the best polo of the tournament should be in order. The match will start at 3 o'clock.

TEAMS TAKE SHAPE IN SCHOOLS
The task of developing a pair of capable ends is the chief difficulty confronting the Olangette coach, Foster, Shuler, Merkin and Anston, the last three mentioned newcomers, worked with the first team at different times during yesterday's scrimmages. The final selection for the wing positions will not be known until a few days before the St. John's game on October 8, according to Coach Hughes.

The Olangette squad will be sent through another scrimmage tomorrow with the Emerson Prep school gridgers. At the same time in Baltimore, Tech will be meeting Baltimore City College and Central will play Baltimore Poly.

A stiff scrimmage was on the bill again yesterday at Eastern. Coach Guyon pitted his men against the Wintons in a scrimmage set early in the week and with this exception has had his men scrimmaging among themselves.

The line-up announced by Coach Guyon, who will start at the ball, again yesterday at Eastern. Coach Guyon pitted his men against the Wintons in a scrimmage set early in the week and with this exception has had his men scrimmaging among themselves.

Coach Hardell indicated last night that Chester Mills would probably call the signals against Baltimore City College. The remainder of the line-up would see Pope and Benner, ends; Rooney and Coe, tackles; Oshmann and Oyster, guards; L. Winston at center, with Florence and Guy at the halves and Krimelmeier at full.

Tech was beaten last year, 13-0, and while they are not pointing especially this year for a victory, such would be sweet to take. The squad was put through signal practice and a light work-out yesterday.

At Central, Johnson replaced Smith at center and will probably stay at the position for the Baltimore Poly game. Smith, who it was feared suffered a broken collar bone in Tuesday's scrimmage, it was revealed after a thorough examination, escaped with a torn ligament. He will be in shape for the High School series.

Coach Mike Kelly drilled his men on tackling, which he hopes to improve before tomorrow. Playing with Johnson in the line tomorrow will be Mahler and Denkin, guards; James and Dye, tackles, and Ross and Rhodes, ends. Capt. Simmons will be at quarter, Stevens and Cross at half and Autt, fullback.

Coach Woodworth's tentative first string line-up at Edinboro has been: Davis and H. Galtia at ends, Linwood Jones and Gibbon at tackle, Lowen and Lash at guard, J. Riley at center, Capt. Charles May at quarter, R. Jones and B. Jones, halfbacks, and Early, fullback.

Tuesday Business plans to scrimmage the Northerners with another practice game may be carried with the alumni.

Northern Practice For Apache Meeting
The Northern eleven will hold its final practice tonight in preparation for the practice game with the Apache Club on Sunday morning at Union League Park. Coach Hurd requests all players to be present at 7 o'clock on the Park View Playground.

The Northern will scrimmage the Business High School team on Tuesday on the Tidal Basin Field. For names with the Northern call Manager Ornes at Adams 3809.

Southern and Express Nines Play 0-0 Tie
The Southern Railway and American Railway Express teams battled to a 0-0 tie yesterday in the second game of the championship of the R. Y. M. C. A. baseball league. The game was called in the fifth inning on account of darkness.

Tunney to Devote Life to Youth Of U. S. at End of Ring Career

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The New York Evening World today prints a copyrighted interview with Gene Tunney in which the heavy weight champion said his aim in life was to teach youth the value of right living.

"What I want to do more than anything else is to devote my life to the welfare of youth," he told Ed Van Dwyer, of the newspaper staff. Asked as to what his plan was, Tunney said:

"To teach our youth the value of clean living. It is hard to talk about these things without seeming preachy, and my work in the ring has put too much demand on my time and my strength to give full thought to just what I have in mind. Now I will take much deep thinking before I can arrive at a plan for the thing I have in mind, and I would rather not talk about it until I have ended by ring career. From present indication this will not be for years.

"But I feel that there is something missing in our educational system. That this last should help youth to advance spiritually, and I mean this more in a physical than a religious sense as well as mentally. Maybe I am hitting at certain social problems which are rather delicate to discuss. But these matters can be touched on with proper education.

"There is too much of the wrong

TOLEDO RAIN PREVENTS OPENER

Bisons and Mudhens Mark Time in "Little World's Series."

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—Rain forced postponement today of the inaugural game of the "little world's series" between the Toledo champions of the American Association and the Buffalo pennant winners of the International League.

The dark low-hanging clouds began to drip their moisture about noon and by game time the rain fell in a steady downpour. With all reserved seats sold and hundreds packed around the box office windows for standing room, the commissioners in charge of the series waited until after 1 o'clock before deciding there was no hope of playing.

The commission is composed of Mike Seaton, of Rock Island, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs; John C. Taylor, Toledo, president of the International League; and Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American Association.

An open date for Friday in the schedule arranged for the series may permit the teams to play the first two games of the series here as planned. The Saturday and Sunday games will be moved to Buffalo, regardless of the postponement here and the teams will return to Toledo to finish the series, with the winner sending fire victories out of nine.

Pitching selections for tomorrow's battle—Joe Bantz, for Toledo, and Leo Mangum, for Buffalo—will remain the same, the managers said.

Marines Open Season At Quantico Saturday

The football season of the United States Marine Corps will be opened Saturday at Quantico, Va., when Washington College eleven, of Chaptown, Md., faces their opponent. The Marines will enter the game fresh from a three-weeks practice period at the University of Maryland where the Maryland team was engaged in scrimmages almost daily.

Forty players comprise the Marine squad including many players with the team their first year but who loom as the mainstays of the squad. Chief among these players are John Gatz, center, former Memphis high school star; Raymond Groves, halfback, former of the San Diego Marines; William Williams, end, formerly of St. John's, Annapolis, and Joseph C. Foley, former Philadelphia scholastic star.

No admission will be charged to the game. Washington College was beaten by Maryland University last Saturday, 8 to 0.

READY FOR CAROLINA

Last Drill Held for Game Saturday; Football Minus Fullback.

SOUTH CAROLINA's football team will be able to pit its full strength against Maryland in its big game at Columbia last Saturday 3:30 o'clock, with the American in Wimberly, fullback, who suffered a broken ankle in scrimmage last week. However, the Gamecocks are sure that this place will be filled by a man every bit as good in Cooper.

With Wimberly out, South Carolina will have eight of the eleven men who helped to conquer the Gamecocks at Columbia last fall, leaving the team even in respect to veterans as Maryland also has a line number who began that contest.

Although the Gamecocks have made quite a trip for the game, they will not lose a practice session. They will indulge in a workout at Columbia today before taking the train for Washington and will reach Columbia in time to go through a line-up drill in the afternoon. Coach Jimmy Driver, athletic director, and Coach Lightsey will be in charge of the players.

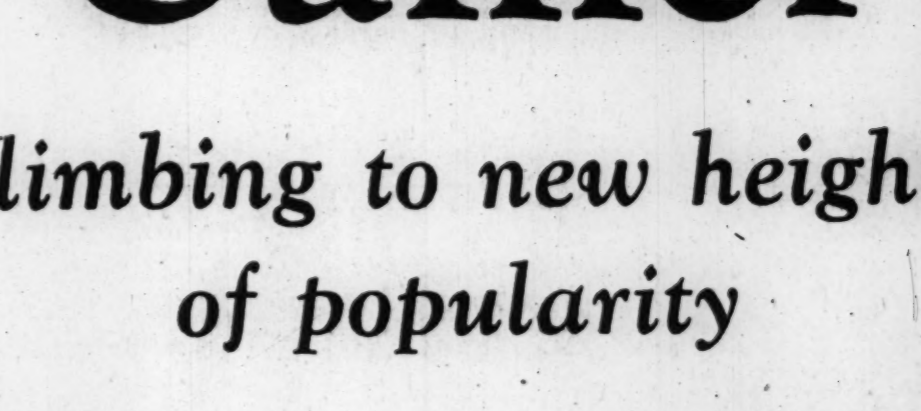

Maryland put in the last hour here for the game yesterday with an extended and strenuous session with the Gamecocks. It was their last afternoon at College Park for the Devil Dogs, who will leave today after lunch and go to Quantico to meet the Marines on Saturday against Washington College.

It has been made evident that the practice sessions with the Marines have done the Maryland team a world of good and have the Old Line eleven much further advanced than if the players were forced to have been among themselves. It is hardly likely that the Old Line will run up against a sturdier bunch than the Marines, of that they will have to combat a team back than Shapley, former Navy star, now the Devil Dogs' quarterback.

Much interest is being manifested in Saturday's game, as it will be the first clash of the season here. Tickets are on sale at Spaulding's.

PLAN TO HARNESS RIVER IS ATTACKED BY WALTON LEAGUE

Organization Writes to Federal Power Commission, Defending Its Views.

DEcries ANY PROJECT ENDANGERING SCENERY

Says Capital Beautification Program Should Include Gorge of Potomac.

Vigorous protest against any plan for harnessing the water power of the Potomac which would destroy the beauty of Great Falls or that of the river gorge above Washington was made yesterday in a letter to the Federal Power Commission by the Isaac Walton League of America.

The letter pointed out that the founders of the Capital intended that it should be a thing of beauty, and not a commercial center, and therefore that any plan for commercialization of the Potomac's glories, likewise among the chief ornaments of the Capital, should be still more desired.

The palisades of the Potomac are among the most beautiful in the world, the letter said. It contended that any plan for the beautification of the Capital could not omit this river gorge. Therefore, the letter contended, the plans for the beautification of the Capital should be continued and should include the river gorge and Great Falls as adjuncts to the beauty.

Pleads for Beauty Preservation.

The letter said, in part: "Leading citizens of many other nations have admired and highly praised the Capital of the United States. Its artistic settings, its beautiful surroundings and the comprehensive and far-sighted manner in which that entire area is being developed as the most beautiful capital of any country have been the envy of other leading nations."

The Isaac Walton League is conversant with the exhaustive plans of the National Park and Planning Commission for the further development of the City of Washington and its environs. We strongly support the commission in its protests against the issuance of the pending power permit, as its approval will surely destroy much of the scenic beauty and recreational value of the upper Potomac and frustrate plans for a still more beautiful setting for the National Capital."

"The Federal Power Commission, it was announced, is awaiting the report of the chief of engineers, to be submitted by the War Department, on the power plan. The report will deal with the practicability of the scheme, and will contain a recommendation as to whether or not the development should be attempted."

Woodridge Garden Show Opens Tonight

The fall flower show of the Woodridge Garden Club, affiliated with the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association, will be held tonight and tomorrow night from 8 to 10 o'clock in the Masonic Hall, Rhode Island and Mills avenues northeast. The judges will be Dr. D. N. Shoemaker and E. C. Powell, of the Department of Agriculture.

Prizes aggregating more than $150 in value are offered, including a sweepstakes prize to go to the winner of the most points. No admission fee is charged and the public is invited to attend the show. Musical entertainment will be offered while the exhibition is in progress.

Man Arrested Here As Escaped Convict

David Swan, alias David Smith, 29 years old, yesterday was arrested in a local attorney's office by Detectives Brodie and Varney, of Police Headquarters and held as a fugitive from justice. Swan, police said, recently escaped from the United States Reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, where he had been transferred from the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta. He was serving a sentence for violating the Mann act. When arrested he was in company with the woman, the detectives state, for whom he is alleged to have been sent to the penitentiary on the Mann charge. Swan was traced by Department of Justice agents.

Police Asked to Seek Missing 17-Year-Old

Police here were requested yesterday to make a search for Louis A. Riegel, 17 years old, of New Bedford, Mass., who is believed to be in Washington. A letter from the Rev. Samuel P. G. Delattre, of New Bedford, Mass., under date of September 26, stated that the boy had written a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Azarie Riegel, mailed here, begging his parents to forgive him. He did not give a return address, however. The minister said in his letter the boy is forgiven, and is urged to communicate with his parents.

Auto Driver Freed In Death of Woman

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of Mrs. Anna Rexford, 65 years old, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was fatally injured early yesterday morning when struck by an automobile driven by Leroy Robey, 27 years old, 1316 Belmont street, northwest.

Robey, who was held by the police, was ordered released. Mrs. Rexford suffered a fractured skull. She died in Emergency hospital where she was taken for treatment following the accident.

Woman Is Injured Making Pumpkin Pie

Trying to gratify her husband's taste for pumpkin pie sent Mrs. Hannah Cardon, 1426 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, to Casualty Hospital with a cut finger and bruised about her head. Mrs. Cardon had bought the pumpkin and was preparing it in the kitchen. The knife slipped and she cut her finger. She started over to a neighbor to dress the wound and fainted on the way. After treatment she returned home.

POSTER CONTEST OPEN FOR TRAVELERS' AID

Competition Arranged to Help in Raising Fund of $20,000.

RULES FOR COMPETITION

Details of the poster contest to be held by the Travelers Aid Society of Washington, in conjunction with its campaign to raise $20,000 for expansion of its activities, were announced last night by Arthur C. Moses and Henry W. Morgan, donors of the prizes.

For the posters most graphically and powerfully conveying the ideals and purposes of the society, three awards will be made: First, $50; second, $25; third, $10. The contest opens today, and all designs must be entered by October 15.

The competition is open to any student, art student or resident of the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia who is not a professional artist and is over the grade school age. Each may submit as many designs as he or she wishes, using any medium adaptable for reproduction by lithography, such as oil, water color, crayon, or pen and ink.

Not more than three colors are to be employed, or effect obtained by the use of blue, yellow, red and black. Posters should not be larger than 22 by 28 inches. They must be on heavy cardboard, illustration board, pastel board or any material that is self-supporting.

Five persons have been named to the jury of award. They are C. Powell, Minneapolis, Minn.; John Allen Dougherty, Clifford E. Berryman, Miss Lella McCallin and Henry C. Sheridan. They will base their opinion on masterful expression of idea, excellence of technique, strength and harmony of color, excellence of drawing and composition, and excellence in word copy.

Posters should be brought or sent to campaign headquarters, 1408 F street, northwest. It was announced. Particular interest in the competition is being shown by art students in the high schools of the city. The society advises that every assistance possible will be given contestants. In addition to the honorary committee of 30 already announced, C. Melvin Sharpe has accepted the general chairmanship of the drive for funds. He will be assisted by an organization of over 100 workers.

JUNIOR RED CROSS TO JOIN CONVENTION

600,000 Boys and Girls to Be Represented When Sessions Open Here.

For the first time in the history of the organization, the American Junior Red Cross will be represented by its own delegates on the floor of the seventh annual convention of the American Red Cross when its sessions open in Washington Monday. The junior organization has a membership of almost twice that of the adult.

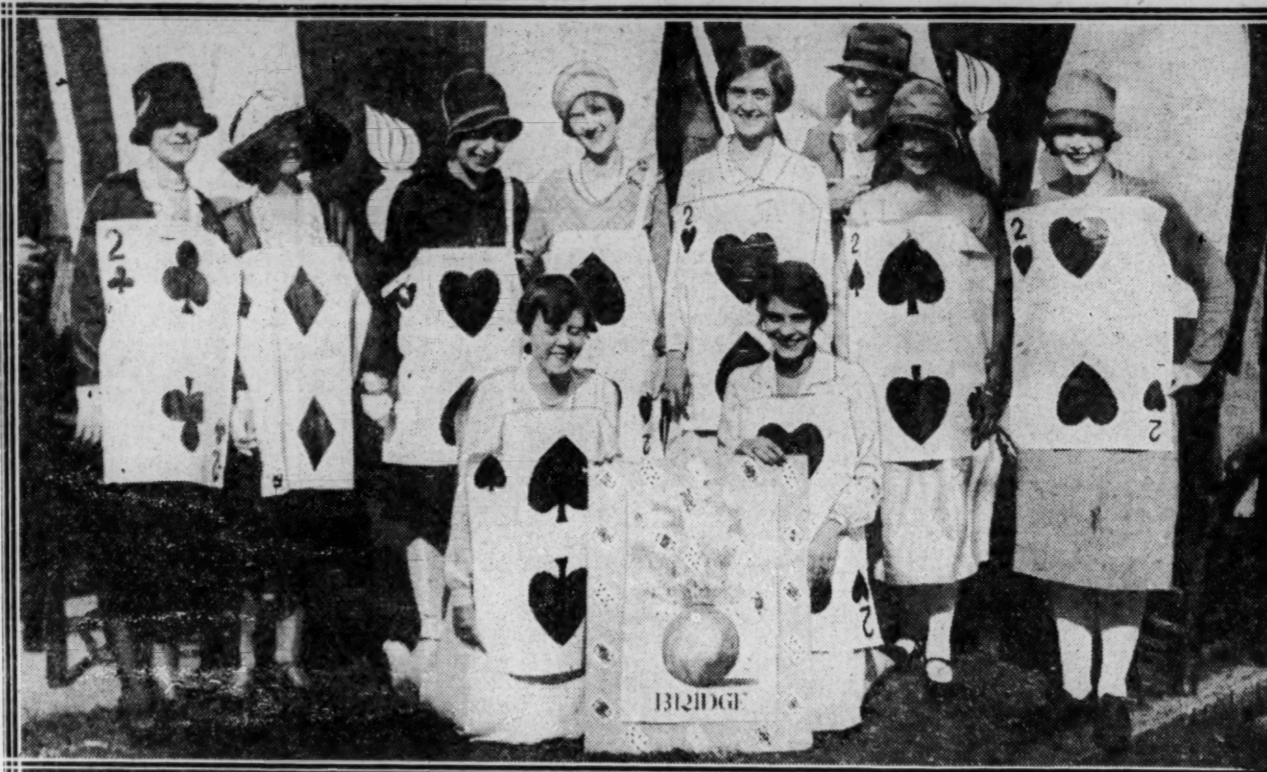

Junior delegates attending the convention will represent the high school contingent, which has a membership of 600,000 boys and girls. Red Cross officials plan to have at least one high school delegate present from each State and to have the young people sit in at the regular sessions of the conference. It is believed this will give them a coordinated idea of the scope of Red Cross work and closely identify the senior and junior memberships.

Two round table conferences have been arranged especially for the junior delegates. Arthur W. Dunn will preside at both conferences, to be held Monday and Wednesday afternoons in the auditorium of the Corcoran Art Gallery. All junior delegates attending the convention together with members from Washington schools will take part in a pageant, "The Vision Splendid," to be staged at Eastern High School. Talmaux will present every phase of Red Cross work.

Fire Parade Prizes To Be Given Tonight

Prizes won by the companies of Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia during the Firemen's parade held here on Labor Day will be awarded tonight at 8 o'clock in the District Building. Commissioner Dougherty will make the presentations. There are 27 loving cups to be awarded and cash prizes. The Washington Post loving cup for the largest and best appearing Maryland company or department in parade without band was won by Water Works Co. No. 1, Annapolis, Md. A large attendance from the various companies and departments that won prizes are expected to be present. Fire Chief George Watson stated.

Subscriptions Spell Cash In Post Elephant Contest

Weight Guessers Enhance Chance for Larger Prizes by Simple Expedient of Signing Up Readers for Newspaper.

This is a personal interview with the Elephant Puzzle Contest Editor of The Washington Post, obtained at great risk, after a hazardous trip through an elephant-infested region which must be traversed in order to reach his sanctuary.

OVER HERE—OVER THERE—

ON THE TOLL SECTOR ON THE MORNING OF MAR. 5, 1918 THE ENEMY OPENED THE BATTLE WITH THEIR USUAL HEAVY, CONCENTRATED ARTILLERY FIRE. THE AMERICANS ANSWERING WITH A STILL HEAVIER FIRE.

"The elephants are coming along all right, but some of these contestants don't seem to realize that they gain much by sending subscriptions with their solutions. At they have to do to raise their chances of winning $250 with the first prize is to send in their own renewal for six months. The subscriptions are so easy to get, too."

"You'd think they would send in all four of the subscriptions that make them eligible for $2,000 first prize, wouldn't you?"

"Just glance over this great big list I have been publishing every day. Take the first prize for instance. The winner who sends in no subscriptions gets $75. If he had included his own renewal for six months it would mean $250 to him. His renewal and another new subscription would have netted him $500 and his renewal and two new subscriptions for six months would mean $1,000."

"Then take the grand prize for first place. His own subscription and three new subscriptions would mean just exactly 2,000 plunks."

"But suppose he already has years and years of subscriptions for himself already? How about that?" the editor was asked.

"Oh, then he could substitute a new six months subscription in each place that calls for a renewal. Tell you what, let's get together and tell these people about this. Explain to them that they are taking a terrible chance of losing enough money to pay off the old mortgage by reneging on the subscriptions. What's the good of figuring out the weight of the twin elephants if you only get a paltry $75?"

Police Court Authority Upheld by Siddons

The authority of the Police Court to impose sentences of more than ten days in default of fines for violations of the traffic regulations was sustained yesterday by Justice Siddons in the District Supreme Court, who dismissed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus sued out by Theodore R. Dorsey, Dorsey pleaded guilty to changing the name on an operator's permit and was fined $275, or 60 days in default, by Judge McMahon.

Attorneys Johnson and Phelan, counsel for Dorsey, contended the sentence of 60 days in default of the fine was beyond the power of the Police Court to impose. An appeal was noted and Dorsey was released under $500 bond.

CHAIN BRIDGE REPAIR BIDS WILL BE SOUGHT

Commissioners to Decide on Plans for Making Span Safe for Use.

SPECIFICATIONS ORDERED

Bids for the repair or replacement of the south abutment of Chain Bridge probably will be sought by advertisement within a few days. The District Commissioners are expected to decide the question at their board meeting tomorrow.

Virtual agreement is reported to have been reached by them at conferences this week. The bridge division of the District government has prepared specifications for replacement of the cracked and crumbling Virginia stone abutment by a new wall of concrete.

It has been proposed by Col. William B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner, that when proposals are sought bidders will not be confined to quoting prices on the new abutment proposed by the bridge division, but that the District avail itself of advice of contractors and their engineers by submitting an alternative invitation to submit other ways of repairing the abutment of which bidders will be sufficiently confident to post guarantees as to stability, such proposals being subject, of course, to approval by the engineers of the municipal government.

If the bids are sought in the way suggested by Col. Ladue the way will be open for any persons who may have a more economical and less expensive treatment than erection of a new abutment to place their suggestions in the concrete form of bids to do the work.

CATHOLIC FEDERATION ADMITS THREE CLUBS

250 Attend Annual Meeting of Montgomery County Women's Organization.

Three organizations of Catholic women were admitted to the Montgomery County Federation of Catholic Women's Clubs at the annual meeting of the organization yesterday at Woodland, Md. ## 'HOMES BEAUTIFUL' SPONSORED BY POST, WIN COMMENDATION

Realtors Join Visitors in Praising Artistic Furnishings.

150,000 EXPECTED TO INSPECT HOUSES

Model Structures Are Open Daily From 1 P. M. Until 10 o'clock.

Indications from the unusual number of people visiting the five homes of the Home Beautiful exhibition, sponsored by The Washington Post, led real estate men and others interested yesterday to predict that, before the contest closes Sunday night, more than 150,000 visitors will have gone through the houses.

Fair weather has played an important part in bringing out the visitors, and if it continues it is easy to believe the six-figure mark will be reached. House number 1, at 4716 Blagden terrace; house number 2, at 4525 Cathedral avenue, Wesley Heights; house number 3, at 2928 Twenty-eighth street; house number 4, at 1425 Van Buren street, northwest; and house number 5, at 418 Peabody street, were thronged again yesterday with those interested in obtaining ideas on modern home furnishings.

Exhibits Commended.

Not only has comment from visitors been unusually meritorious, but the realtors themselves have expressed complete satisfaction in the manner the exhibit has been conducted. W. C. Miller, of W. C. and A. N. Miller, said, "I congratulate The Washington Post on its Home Beautiful exhibit in Wesley Heights. It is the best furnished house we have ever had and the exhibit has attracted the best class of people."

Floyd Cissel, of the Wardman Construction Co., declares: "We are more than pleased with the Home Beautiful exhibit sponsored by The Washington Post. We are surprised at the class of visitors attracted to our house, and every one has been most enthusiastic in his praise of the taste shown in the furnishings. We would like to repeat this annually."

Charles E. Wire, of Charles E. Wire & Sons, states: "I am much surprised at the beauty and completeness of the home beautiful exhibit. Our house at 4716 Blagden terrace is the best furnished house I have ever seen in any similar exhibit in Washington."

Individual Touches Seen.

Unless a visit has been made to the houses, it is impossible to appreciate the taste displayed can not be appreciated. All the little individual touches which make homes attractive are included in the exhibit. For instance, fresh flowers in attractive vases decorate the rooms wherever possible, and excellent pictures on the walls were especially commented upon. Rugs and other things have been most carefully selected to harmonize with the rest of the room. These things breed in one a desire to go straight home and try in every possible way to brighten up and beautify one's home.

The houses are open daily from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 10 o'clock at night and will remain so until the exhibit closes Sunday night. Those interested in securing up-to-the-minute ideas on modern home furnishings should not fail to visit the homes. They are completely appointed from cellar to attic.

Truck Driver Held In Death of Woman

William F. Claggett, 33 years old, colored, 213 V street, northwest, was held yesterday by police of the Tenth Precinct in the death of Ida Stewart, 25 years old, colored, 1601 First street, northwest, who died yesterday at her home.

On September 26 she jumped from a truck operated by Claggett on Fourteenth street northwest between Buchanan and Allison streets, and was injured. She was treated at Freedman's hospital and later removed to her home.

Messenger Boy Hurt Colliding With Auto

George Truitt, messenger of the Postal Telegraph Co., suffered slight cuts and bruises yesterday when knocked from his bicycle in the rear of the Munitions Building in a collision with an automobile driven by Sgt. E. D. Latta, of the Signal Corps, United States Army.

The boy was going east on the driveway, whereas traffic, according to regulations, must move west on the driveway. Sgt. Latta had just turned into the driveway, and the collision followed. Truitt was treated in the Army dispensary in the Munitions Building.

Injured Fire Chief Improves at Hospital

Acting Battalion Chief William F. Gibbs, 48 years old, of Sixth Truck Company, is recovering in Emergency Hospital from injuries sustained early yesterday morning while fighting the two-alarm fire at 1823 Fourteenth street northwest.

Gibbs was climbing a ladder that had been erected and in some manner slipped and fell, striking a car below him. He was cut and bruised. An X-ray was made to ascertain if he had suffered any fractures.
